TONIGHT IS to be the great night of the "Reformed Adventists." In Hollywood, Mrs. Rowen expects to lead the few faithful up to heaven. In Long Island, on the East side of the continent, a stout little man, thirty-three years old, named Reidt, calling himself "The Prophet of Doom," will lead his collection of survivors up to heaven, if all goes as planned.

THE PROGRAM is hard on the majority. Only 144,000 are to be saved and go up in a cloud. All the rest of the sixteen hundred million humans, black, white, brown and yellow, on this earth will be destroyed. That is what you might call discrimination.

The 144,000 destined to be saved are called "Brides of the Lamb."

Why a lamb should want even one bride, to say nothing of 144,000, is a puzzling feature of this strange world ending. But very probably the world WON'T end, and the 144,000 brides will have to postpone meeting the lamb for some time.

THE PITIFUL FEATURE of the whole anachronistic performance is the terror of the Prophet Reidt's four little children, called "Followers of the Prophet." They believe the world really will end, and they don't want to go up in a cloud.

Mrs. Reidt, wife of the Prophet of Doom, bears up well. Prophets' wives don't always take prophecies seriously.

JAPAN IS SHIPPING gold to the United States to advance the price of the yen, now 25 per cent. below par. The Japanese are able, excelling in industry, inventiveness, adaptation, capacity for hard work. Lack of gold would not destroy international confidence in the yen.

But such lack of confidence might come from the activity of Japan's flying machine factories.

A nation turning out 500 fighting flying machines a month has some ambitious plan in mind.

Failure to realize the plan would be disastrous to the yen, and some other things in Japan.

THE WESTERN MIND does not understand Japanese thought or prejudice. This was illustrated in Tokio recently when an art loan exhibit included Rodin's statue, "The Kiss." The police interfered, not because the figures in the statue are naked, for nudity is not objectionable in Japan, where it has long been customary for men and women, completely naked, to bathe in tubs on the sidewalks.

The Japanese do not kiss, and consider that a very objectionable custom.

THE POLICE COMPROMISED finally by putting a screen around the statue, permitting only those of sufficient age and education to look at it.

In this country we should put a screen around the lady taking her bath in a little tub on the sidewalk, and let the Rodin statue stand exposed in any public park.

NORMAN HAPGOOD, writing from Washington, says: "Business now rules the nation." Why, certainly! This is a business nation; our powerful interests are business interests. Every country is ruled by its principal "interests."

RELIGION RULES Thibet through the Grand Lama, and the tens of thousands of Thibetan monks.

Royalty, nobility—and clergy ruled France in old days, before the revolution. Now the bourgeoise—French name for business—rules France.

France has learned some hard lessons, and the bourgeoise calls in militarism, as a big brother, to help watch and ward while business goes on. That's simply

CAVE CAPTIVE STILL ALIVE, RADIO SHOWS

Gen. Mitchell Attacks War Department

PRESIDENT LOWELL'S SISTER KILLED

VICTIM'S FIANCEE AT CAVE; HAD SET TODAY FOR ELOPING

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 6 (A.P.)—Completion of a second radio amplification test today convinced men who made the test that Floyd Collins, for six days held entombed in the fastnesses of a cave he was exploring, remained alive.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 6.—A solitary figure stood in the glow of a hilltop campfire, watching silently the shaft being sunk, inch by inch, to Floyd Collins, cave prisoner, who, it is now believed, has died in the trap that has held him for a week.

The light's reflection revealed after a minute, two streams of tears on the watcher's face, but they were never brushed away, says a copyright story to the Courier Journal from Cave City.

This silent observer was Alma Clark, twenty-two years old, living eight miles from Cave City, come to mourn on what was to have been her wedding day and for him who was to have been her husband.

Around her many were talking, calling to one another, and some were laughing. They didn't know they didn't even see this figure, nor did she see them.

She held her eyes on the newmade shaft. She turned, finally, and

MITCHELL DEFIES WEEKS IN CHARGES

Washington, Feb. 6.—Brigadier General Mitchell, assistant chief of the army air service, informed Secretary Weeks today that he believed "the present War Dept. organization and its administration quite incapable of creating, handling or administering air power in an efficient manner."

In the letter, replying to a request from the War Secretary for all facts upon which the assistant army air chief based recent statements "seriously reflecting" on the army's air arm, General Mitchell said he was convinced the system of aircraft management in operation in the United States "is detrimental to the country's good, and will seriously compromise our national defence should an emergency arise."

ACCUSES NAVY OFFICIALS.

The general's letter was placed before the House Aircraft Committee, which had met to hear both General Mitchell and Brigadier-General Drum of the Army General Staff.

"The general view of the War Department," General Mitchell wrote, "is to limit the ability of aviation in a military way and in spite of the findings of the joint army and navy board, in spite of the most conclusive evidence of every country in the world, the Navy Department still appears before Congress and still

SALEM JAILBREAKER CAUGHT UNDER BED

Salem, Feb. 6.—Florence O'Neil, who was sentenced last May to six months for breaking and entering and who sawed his way out of Salem jail October 25 was captured early today by local police officers at his home, No. 25 Conant street.

O'Neil, armed with an old revolver, was dragged from beneath a bed where he had hidden and was returned to the jail.

Where he has been since his escape he fails to disclose. A diamond stick pin, which he tried to conceal, was found in his possession. In the bed beneath which he hid two children were asleep when the police entered.

STONE CAN NOT TAKE SEAT UNTIL MARCH 2

Washington, Feb. 6.—Although the nomination of Attorney-General Stone to be a Supreme Court justice was confirmed by the Senate, 71 to 6, Mr. Stone will be unable to take his place on the bench until March 2, when the court convenes after its present recess.

Unsuccessful in his effort to block confirmation of Stone, James A. Ownbey, mining man, has said he will renounce his citizenship and move to Canada.

3 SAFE BLOWERS ARE TRAPPED WITH GEMS

Three Chicago crackmen, the leader a drug fiend, were captured by Boston police, early today, shortly after they had blown the door from the safe in the jewelry offices of Louis A. and Howard G. Treco, in the White building at No. 615 Washington street.

An error in judging the amount of dynamite needed to open the safe was responsible for the capture of the men.

When three police officers stepped into the jewelry offices on the fourth floor of the building, a fortune in gems and jewelry was strewn about the floor of the office. Two of the crackmen promptly threw up their hands when ordered

WILD BULL LASSOED AS HE GORES YOUTH

After goring Harry Sanford of No. 416 Grove street, Melrose, and trampling several other of his captors, the "wild bull of Saugus" has been subdued, ending a two months' chase during which the animal had the residents of surrounding towns in constant fear.

Sanford, one of a large group of Melrose young men who entered the bull into the yard of George Levi at No. 5 Altamont avenue, Melrose, was saved from probable death by Chester Richardson, a companion, of School street, who in true Western fashion roped the enraged animal just as he was making a lunge to trample the injured youth whom he had knocked down with his horns.

After the rope had been drawn tight around the bull's neck, his captors quickly subdued him and tied him up in Levi's barn. There he will remain awaiting the arrival of his owner, Warren S. Scott, dairy farmer, of High street, Stoneham.

The animal, a full-blooded Holstein-Friesian, broke away from the Stoneham farm about two months ago and began a campaign of destruction which included knocking down many fences, up-rooting seeded turf on many private plots and galloping down the main streets.

SOCIETY WOMAN PLUNGES OUT HOTEL VENDOME WINDOW

Mrs. Katharine Lowell Bowler, society and clubwoman and sister of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, hurled six stories to her death today from her suite in the Hotel Vendome, Commonwealth avenue.

In her fall, she narrowly missed striking the top of a truck just pulling into Public Alley No. 434 at the rear of the hotel, which landing there might have broken her fall sufficiently to have saved her life.

She was dead when picked up by a hotel porter and passersby. In the belief that a spark of life might still be present, however, she was taken to the City Hospital.

Mrs. Bowker, who for many months had made her home at the Vendome, was sixty-six years old and a widow. Her husband was T. James Bowker.

With her maid, Miss Nickerson, the sister of the Harvard University head occupied a suite on the fifth floor rear. A basement at the rear, however, makes an additional story from the Bowker windows.

According to the maid, she was standing with Mrs. Bowker near a window when the ash collector came into the public alley below.

"Oo, there's the ash man. This is his second collection that he has made today," remarked the widow, Miss Nickerson said.

The maid turned to make one of the beds and as she did so heard her mistress cry out:

"Help me; I'm falling."

But the widow had plunged

SOCIABLE CROOK TIES, ROBS WOMAN

Boston's brazen "sociable burglar," described in his own writing as the "Lone Wolf," tied another woman in her apartment and departed today at daybreak with much loot after attacking her.

The latest victim of the boastful marauder, who asserted he was the same nocturnal visitor that inflicted indignities on previous victims of a "sociable" burglar, is Miss Martha A. Briggs, forty, of No. 15 Queensberry street.

Miss Briggs is a public stenographer with an office in Room 648, Little Building. Her home apartment is in the same building with that of Agnes E. Prescott and her

DUCHESS SHOT ON STREETS OF PARIS

Paris, Feb. 6.—The Duchess d'Albufera, nee de Caimbaceres, was shot and wounded by a former employe today. Three shots out of six fired by her assailant took effect.

Physicians said that her wounds were not serious. Her assailant was arrested.

The shooting occurred on the Rue de Constantine, a busy thoroughfare near the Quay d'Orsay.

PONZI EMULATOR IS GIVEN TEN YEARS

New York, Feb. 6.—Moe Turman, twenty-six-year-old financier who in ten years pyramided a $100 loan into obligations approximating $2,000,000, was sentenced today to serve from five to ten years in Sing Sing. He had pleaded guilty to a second degree forgery indictment.

Judge Talley, in imposing sentence, denounced persons of foreign birth who "abuse the privileges given them in this country."

"I will also recommend," he said, "that Turman, who is not a citizen of this country, be deported at the end of his term. I am sorry I cannot issue the order for deportation myself. I want this to be an example to young foreigners who come here and attempt to become captains of finance by employing criminal means."

600 SILK WORKERS ORDERED TO STRIKE

The strike was voted at a mass meeting of workers to halt alleged discrimination against union organizers and workmen.

CAVE MAN'S SWEETHEART MOURNS ON DAY SET FOR ELOPING

SILENTLY WATCHES FRANTIC WORK OF RESCUERS DIGGING DEEP SHAFT

in a moment was lost in the darkness.

Her tears, her expression and her walk told plainly that her hopes are no more, that she feels the cave which Floyd Collins set out to explore will not release its grip until he dies.

It has held him seven days. It has held out hopes to him time and again, but it shuttered them beyond recall, when it closed the one avenue to the world outside.

Floyd Collins and Miss Alma Clark were to have eloped today, but only a few of their friends knew the secret. One of them, a man, saw the girl at the shaft and saw the saddened face. He saw and knew, he understood, and he turned his eyes as she passed him.

PLANNED ELOPEMENT.

It was said objections to the marriage had been made and that the elopement was planned as a means of overcoming it. And this may be why Floyd Collins wouldn't give up his fight for life when he knew the fight seemed lost. It may explain why Collins kept courage when rescuers and friends were downcast. It may reveal how Collins endured torture with a smile.

Collins has had nothing to eat since Wednesday. Food taken into the cave is within twenty feet of him, but he cannot reach it.

A long day of digging was ahead of the men sinking the new shaft. Whether Collins was dead or alive, none has known definitely since a cave-in Wednesday night blocked the passage in which he has been lying, pinioned by one foot, for one week.

The general belief was that he had succumbed; by being crushed to death, or by suffocation, or by pneumonia, any of which would end his long fight to live.

Early today, however, radio was resorted to in hopes the cave would give up its secret. A two stage audio frequency amplifier was connected in the lighting circuit leading into the cave, and known to be intact.

The lights were turned off, and with head sets clamped to their ears, the experimenters listened for any sound that might be interpreted as coming from Collins.

After the test, the men said that they had heard distinct sounds, believed by them to have been caused by the jarring of the carbon filament in the electric light bulb fastened about Collins' neck. It was commented that, if alive, Collins had probably moved when the light went out, thus shaking the filament. On the other hand, it was pointed out that other noises might have caused the sounds heard in the headsets. Thus, nothing definite was determined.

It has been estimated that Collins is fifty-five feet below the surface. Estimates as to the time it will take to sink the shaft vary from 24 to 72 hours.

The shaft had been sunk at noon today to a depth of twelve feet. Continuous dirt and rock slides hampered the diggers. One-third of the material being removed was cave-in matter.

Only two miners can work below at the same time, as the excavation is only six feet wide. They pile the rock and dirt on a small platform which is drawn up by men on the surface and carried away in wheelbarrows by others.

Saw Self Trapped
Sees Self Trapped

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Floyd Collins, in a dream, found himself imprisoned in a cave sometime before he was caught in Sand Cave a week ago, his stepmother said today.

Mrs. Lizzie Collins, sixty-five, weakened by a chronic illness, made her first visit to the scene today and broke down in tears. The victim's sister, Miss Nellie Collins, twenty-one, also saw the tragic surroundings for the first time.

Peering at the mouth of the cave, the elder woman asked exactly how her stepson was pinioned and entombed. She talked a bit and then sank, her strength having ebbed to a low point.

She had repeatedly begged Collins to abandon his explorations, she said. "For goodness sake, Floyd, quit going in those holes," she warned him.

Her answer, one day, was a promise he would not go in any dangerous places again.

"Then he told me about an awful dream he had," said his stepmother. "He said: 'I dreamed I was caught, rocks falling on me, and ugly big things clawing me. It was terrible and I couldn't sleep afterward. I'm not going in any more tight places.'

"That was on Monday before he was caught that he told me all this.

Wounded Man Is Carried 8 Miles in Snow to Aid

Penn Yan, N. Y., Feb. 6—Harry Cole, a farmer of Crosby, on Keuka Lake, is in a Penn Yan hospital with a chance for his life after having been nine hours with a bullet in his back, making the eight-mile trip through snow-drifted roads to this village.

Sixteen horses, working in shifts, were used in bringing Cole to the hospital. Snow here is three feet deep on the level, with the highways entirely drifted over.

TYPIST VICTIM OF BACK BAY 'LONE WOLF'

niece, Catharine DeVoll, who were bound and tied two weeks ago.

THREATENED WITH GUN.

Miss Briggs remained in her office last night until 10 o'clock. She entered her apartment at 10:30 and discovered the bathroom in disorder.

Returning through the living room and the short hall to the front door, the woman was confronted by the burglar who suddenly stepped out of a closet.

Holding a revolver before her face, he threatened:

"Make an outcry and I'll shoot you dead."

At the point of the gun she was ordered back into the living room, where the invader placed her in a chair with face to wall, placed a towel over her mouth, bound her hands, laid her on a couch and tied her feet.

When she struggled, he forced her to drink a potion he mixed, and hit her on the head with the revolver, inflicting a scalp wound.

Next he piled up in the room, the woman's Hudson seal coat, worth $300, a black satin dress valued at $40, a green dress $40, two pairs of silk stockings $7, a camel's hair sweater $10, a black suit case $10 and her watch.

PARTOOK OF LIQUOR.

Police Inspectors Dorsey and Augusta went on the trail of the sociable burglar, working on the theory that he may be a former employe of the Queensberry street building, where two such affairs have occurred in two weeks, and may be equipped with pass keys.

Two warrants were issued in Roxbury Court to the police later today against the chatty visitor in the name of Stevens, which name he mentioned as his own to Miss Briggs.

He left her bound in the apartment and went out, returning in an hour. Sitting down, he apologized for the blow he had struck her on the head.

Between sentences he partook of some liquor he had found in the apartment and lunched on delicacies from the ice box.

Then he boasted, declaring he was the "Lone Wolf" that spent the night in the apartment of Miss Bessie M. Kelley at No. 10 Museum road and later spent the night downstairs in the Queensberry st. block with the Prescott and DeVoll women.

At daybreak, the chatty burglar packed his loot into the suitcase and made ready to go. But before he departed, he went into the bathroom, obtained a piece of soap and wrote on the mirror:

"I am the Lone Wolf."

AROUSED BY GROANS.

Groans from Miss Briggs were overheard several hours later by a woman in the apartment upstairs.

She notified the janitor, who entered with his pass key and found the stenographer in a hysterical condition, with her clothing torn and bedraggled, and still tightly bound on the couch.

Special Officer Frank McNabb of the Back Bay station rushed to the apartment when the police were notified, and headquarters inspectors from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation were sent to obtain finger prints.

Miss Briggs' description of her visitor nearly matches that given by previous victims of the chatty visitor—thirty-five years old, five feet five inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, with dark complexion, smooth shaven and wearing dark gray overcoat, blue serge suit and gray soft hat.

through before the maid could give aid, according to her story.

Six stories down, Mrs. Bowlker struck the icy ground with terrific force.

Dr. R. B. Dixon of No. 235 Clarendon street, who had been attending Mrs. Bowlker for arthritis, was hurriedly summoned. He arrived while she was on her way to the hospital.

In her fall, Mrs. Bowlker narrowly missed landing atop the truck of John J. Ferry, of No. 92 Thorndike street, Arlington, who was driving through the alley.

WEEKS' REGIME IS SCORED BY MITCHELL

testifies incorrectly and gives the impression that aircraft are of limited power against battleships.

"The resistance of the War Department to the creation of an independent aeronautical personnel is insistent and constant.

"I have fully criticised the system now in operation, which I am convinced is detrimental to the country's good, and which will seriously compromise our national defence should an emergency arise."

$433,000,000 GONE.

General Mitchell said that since the war $433,000,000 "has been put into aviation, but that he did not believe "the appropriations are economically administered on account of the duplication of land bases between the army and navy."

He declared that Major-General Patrick, chief of the army air service, had, like himself, endorsed "a united air force," although such a move is opposed by Secretary Weeks as well as by Secretary Wilbur.

The report of the joint Army and Navy Department board in 1921, of which General Pershing was senior member, and which bore the approval of Secretary Weeks and acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, General Mitchell quoted as follows:

"Aircraft carrying high capacity, high explosive bombs of sufficient size have adequate offensive power to sink or seriously damage any naval vessel at present constructed, provided such projectile can be placed in the water close alongside the vessel."

Despite opposition in other quarters, General Mitchell said, the reason the army air service had accomplished as much as it has was "due very largely to the sympathetic attitude of the Secretary of War toward aviation" and the "personal ability of the present chief of the air service."

FOR VESTED INTERESTS.

General Mitchell took up in detail those statements of his congressional testimony objected to by Secretary Weeks.

Explaining his assertion that "all the organization we have in this country really now is for the protection of vested interests against aviation," he declared the War, Navy and Postoffice and other departments concerned with aviation "resist any changes which in any way curtail or modify their authority, either over aviation, its development to a position of equality with these departments, or its extension or development beyond the being a mere auxiliary to their activities."

Discussing the bombing tests off the Virginia Capes in 1921, the general said the "whole performance, in the minds of the air officers participating, appeared to be a deliberate attempt to handicap us in the accomplishment of our mission."

In the test, he said, the army aviators were ordered to bomb from an excessive altitude.

SAFE-BLOWERS CAPTURED AT GUN POINT

to surrender. Sergeant Nixon of the Lagrange street station fired at the third man through a crack in the open door of the office and the latter promptly put his hands in the air and joined his companions in surrendering.

CARRIED LUNCH.

The capture of the cracksmen in the act of gathering together their loot is one of the most thrilling stories in modern police annals.

Cheese sandwiches and other food was carried into the building by the thieves who planned to work, undisturbed, until daylight. The oversight of one of the gang, in placing too heavy a charge of dynamite in a hole they had drilled above the combination in the big jewelry safe brought about their apprehension.

The jewelry offices are on the fourth floor of the White building, at 315 Washington street. The Modern Theatre is on one side of the White building and entrance to the building can be gained from the theatre.

Patrolman Coleman Morrison of the Lagrange street station was making a duty call at Bedford and Washington streets when he heard the sound of a muffled explosion. The crashing of glass accompanied the explosion.

The policeman ran to the theatre building and through it entered the White building. Reaching the third floor of the structure he encountered a thick haze of powder smoke.

The pungent odor of the smoke told the officer more plainly than words that cracksmen were at work in the building. Lee Frye, watchman in the White building, who was on the fifth floor when the explosion occurred, ran to the street and summoned aid, while Patrolman Morrison continued his investigation.

Sergeant Allan V. Nixon and Patrolman John Cunningham entered the building and joined Patrolman Morrison after being notified by the watchman.

CRASHED DOOR IN.

The officers crashed in the door. Inside were three men, dirty and grimy, in the act of gathering together the fortune in gems that was scattered about their feet.

The police, with drawn revolvers, ordered the men to throw up their hands.

Two of the burglars were quick to reply. The third hesitated and made a movement as though to draw a weapon. Sergeant Nixon fired through the crack of the door, intentionally firing over the man's head. The third of the gang was quick to surrender.

"We used too much dope," was the laconic comment of one of the safe-crackers as he was being led away.

The men gave their names as Nathan Green, aHrry Davis and Joseph Lewis.

HERRIOT PROPOSES BOARD TO SETTLE FRENCH DEBT

Paris, Feb. 6 (A.P.)—Premier Herriot today proposed to a plenary joint session of the Chamber of Deputies' Foreign Relations and Finance Committees the creation of a commission composed of fourteen members to study, in close co-operation with the government, a settlement of the inter-allied debt problem. This commission would report its solution to Parliament.

COHASSET STUNG ON BEE DEAL?

Citizens Say Town Paid Too Much for Honey Gatherers Who Dined on Poison

How is Cohasset going to warn the busy bee when it sprays the foliage in and about that fair town?

That is the problem which has placed the town officers in a very uncomfortable position and may cost Cohasset $1800.

At the town meeting in 1922 it was voted to pay this amount to Llewellyn Litchfield for the loss of 22 bees and a like number of pullets. Litchfield claimed negligence on the part of the town, inasmuch as the bees had no notice of the spraying.

BILL IN EQUITY.

Judge Sisk in Norfolk County Superior Court at Dedham, today reserved decision on the bill in equity brought by a group of ten residents to restrain the town officers from paying Litchfield the $1500.

The town may have to appoint bee nurse maids or truant officers unless M. Maurice Masterlinck, author of "The Life of a Bee," or Margery or someone is able to dope on a printable bee language. What the selectmen want is something like the following:

"Notice to Bees.
This Daffodill, sprayed with Arsenic of Lead.
Anchor off."

The sad story of the busy bees and fluffy chicks follows.

Twenty-two of Mr. Litchfield's several thousand bees went to work in a neighboring orchard one bright morning. The orchard had been sprayed with arsenate of lead to kill gipsy moths and the like, but the bees didn't know it.

THE BEE'S FINALE.

They were on the way back to their hives in Litchfield's backyard when they dropped dead. Twenty-two of Litchfield's pullets, of the opinion that an early bee is good as an early worm, each devoured a bee.

The bees being loaded with arsenic, the pullets were soon poking their toes in the air. Litchfield told the sad story to the town meeting and was awarded $1,500 by the sympathetic townspeople.

The ten petitioners, led by George Young, do not feel the town should be responsible for bees who wander into folks' orchards. They also disagree with the valuation put on the life of a bee.

REAL FUN AT LOWELL CARNIVAL

HUB FOLK GUESTS AT WINTER FESTIVITIES

Boston is on its mid-Winter holiday.

The sports of the country hold an appeal that has drawn thousands from the Hub within the past forty-eight hours. Other throngs are leaving on every train.

The warm sands and the witching waves of Florida and California hold a charm that attracts thousands, but the redblooded boys and girls of New England—their elders as well, are this week disporting themselves in a series of winter carnivals in New Hampshire and Vermont, that are the direct anthesis of the soft languor of the tropics.

"Come to us pretty and warm, not expensive and cold," is the slogan the Dartmouth College boys have broadcast throughout New England.

At Hanover, today, are congregated hundreds of New England's fairest daughters. The fraternity houses at Dartmouth are in their possession.

At Jackson, N. H., the members of the Boston Rotary Club, their wives and sweethearts, assembled for a Winter carnival which got under way at daybreak, with a snowshoe hike.

No more elaborate Winter carnival has been arranged in New England than the one now under way at Intervale, N. H., at the upper end of Lake Winnepesaukee. With thousands of spectators gathered from all parts of New England in attendance, 100 tar barrels, furnished by the State Highway Department, burned in a seafire that was seen for miles about.

With over two feet of fresh snow covering the landscape, Berlin, N. H., is entertaining a gala party of pleasure seekers from Boston and other points in Southern New England.

The carnival spirit has even invaded the Bay State and Lowell has an ice and snow carnival under way that has attracted thousands.

The program of Winter sports extends beyond the present week, however. At Keene, N. H., a three-day snow and ice carnival will start on February 21.

Northfield, Vt., with the Norwich University Outing Club as the moving factor, will have a Winter carnival today and tomorrow that will equal that of St. Moritz itself, according to those in charge.

GERMANY DENIES HAVING A SECRET AIR FLEET

Berlin, Feb. 6 (A.P.)—The German government denied today the charges made in the French press that Germany was secretly developing a large air fleet, constituting a threat to France's security. It was stated that only 40 persons in Germany had pilot's licenses, and that of this number only twenty-four had been trained since the war.

MORE STUDENTS ARE QUIZZED IN POISON PROBE

Columbus, O., Feb. 6 (A.P.)—Two courses of inquiry were pursued today by officials investigating the finding of deadly poison in medicine prescribed last week for Ohio State University students.

Officials, under the lead of Police Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., resumed their questioning of the Pharmacy College students who worked in the dispensary last week. Inspectors of the State Pharmacy Board, whose co-operation was asked by Chester, were checking drug stores today to see if unusually large purchases of the poison have been made in recent months and to find out if any of the poison has disappeared or has been stolen from drug store stocks.

University officials, at the behest of President W. O. Thompson, have abandoned their formal attempts at an investigation and held themselves in readiness to assist the authorities. President Thompson again emphasized that the entire resources of the university were at the disposal of the investigators.

Forty-one students, the balance of those who worked in the dispensary last week, are scheduled to be examined during the day. Examination of the first twenty-three yesterday failed to throw any light on the presence of poison in the bottle of quinine capsules and did not furnish any clue to the discovery of a new bottle of the poison on the dispensary shelves.

Cards Out for Sunday's Opening of Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum

Only a Select Few of the Smartest of Boston's Smart Set Have Been Invited to Attend This Ultra-Artistic and Society Affair

By BETTY ALDEN

SUNDAY next brings an affair of large significance, socially and artistically, when for the very first time the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum is to be opened.

CARDS HAVE gone out from the trustees, headed by Harold Jefferson Coolidge, to a limited circle of the very smartest of the smart set, for whom really it will be a private view.

AND OF COURSE everybody so fortunate as to receive one of the much coveted pasteboards will be on hand to view the treasure house.

PERHAPS THE ALL-PERVADING and indomitable influence of the one and only "Mrs. Jack Gardner" may be felt on that day, when the priceless paintings and other objects enter into their new career in a public museum, for such it is, the truly glorious reminder of Boston's famous personage.

HARD ON THE HEELS of the Vincent Club's announcement anent their Spring theatrical production comes word from Messrs. Frank Barton and George Douglass Debevoise of many interesting details regarding the annual play by the Hasty Pudding Club.

MESSRS. DEBEVOISE and Barton are the managers. And the play is to be called "Laugh It Off," from the pens of John Murphy and William S. Martin.

MR. SILVERS, the coach, comes up from New York on the 23rd of the month, to look over material and assign the principal parts.

GRADUATES' NIGHT, when "Old Grads" come back to Cambridge to give the fledgling play the benefit of their advice and criticism, comes at the Pudding Club House on Wednesday, April 15, and is open only to graduates.

THIS IS A NEW ruling, but one made necessary by the amalgamation, not so long ago, of the Institute of 1770 and the Pudding Club. The Cambridge clubhouse is not so very large, and were others than "grads" admitted verily they needs must cling to the rafters, falling other vantage points.

THE TWO FIRST public performances are at the Club House, on Thursday, April 16, and Friday, April 17.

THEN PRINCIPALS and chorus, managers, staff and the whatnot incident to theatrical production, all depart on their "tour."

THEY PLAY AT THE Hotel Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia on April 20, and in Washington on April 21. April 24 and 25 find them at the Hotel Plaza in New York for two performances.

THEN COMES BOSTON'S turn, their appearances here, sometimes about the 28th of April, all depending on just when the company gets back in town from Gotham.

BOSTON'S TRULY great feast of music and operatic pageantry draws toward its close in a perfect blaze of glory. Last evening was brilliant in the extreme—from every point of view.

Miss Anna Fuller is winning much new glory at tennis, in the invitation tourney now going on at the Heights Casino in Brooklyn.

SOCIETY WAS OUT almost en masse, and to add flavor there was a fine showing of musical notables. Madame Polacco (Edith Mason) in a regal ermine wrap and small chapeau of silver, was in a centre box, while way round toward the stage on the left was none other than Italo Montemezzi, the Italian composer.

SUCH AN OVATION as he received from the singers themselves and from the enormous audience which once again packed the spacious auditorium way up to the topmost tier of seats.

ANOTHER PERSONAGE of international renown in the smart assemblage was the Baron de Cartier, Belgian Ambassador, who came as the guest of the B. H. Bristow Drapers.

JUST NEARBY Mrs. Boylston Beal, beautifully gowned and coiffed, held court in her box. I also saw—of the regulars—Miss Annie Endicott Nourse, in gray and gold, Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes in black with diamond ornaments, and Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene, in silver and black with touches of jade.

MRS. TIMOTHEE ADAMOWSKI, handsome in black velvet of extremely smart cut, Mrs. John Chipman Gray in silver, Mrs. Jose Adamowski in old blue velvet and Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge in beaded velvet were all in attendance.

MRS. COOLIDGE had in her box that youthful matron of such great good looks, Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, and Betty Beal, both stunningly gowned and most attractive.

MRS. CURTIS GUILD, resplendent in a gown of silver beneath a jade velvet wrap, was a gorgeous figure just in the very centre of the horseshoe.

MRS. JOHN C. GRAY'S box held a family group, her granddaughter, Anna Tudor, in a tinsel cloth, and her daughter, Mrs. Henry Dubois Tudor, in softest gray crepe.

MRS. MAYNARD LADD and Dr. Ladd were in the Edward Jackson Holmes box, Mrs. Ladd wearing a crepe and chiffon gown of vivid cerise.

LOVELY MARY OTIS and her stately mother, Mrs. Herbert Foster Otis, were of a box group. Mary was in crepe frock of the popular bright green.

JUST A SHORT WAY around the brilliant circle was Martha Bigelow, her gown also of green, but done in a softer shade. Martha Bigelow is one of last Winter's lovely crop of girls, of which, by the way, Mary Otis is herself an outstanding member.

MRS. SOHIER WELCH wore last evening a gleaming gown of palest blue brocade shot with silver, and her fair hair was bound low on the forehead with a diamond tiara. She was a picture of stately beauty, topping her gown, as she did, with a wrap of pastel tinted metal cloth with ostrich forming the deep collar.

THE ORCHESTRA held many a fashionable. There was Mrs. Valentine Hollingsworth in deep rose crepe, Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell in black velvet, Mrs. Edwin Sibley Webster and her daughter, Polly, all in their accustomed places.

AND MRS. PIERPONT STACKPOLE in sable wrap and sequined and beaded gown, Mrs. George Mumford in a velvet wrap of marvellous oriental prints and gown of black, Mrs. Warren Story Smith in black with scarf of mauve tulle, and Mrs. Florence Close Gale in rose.

FRANCESCA BRAGGIOTTI, in a demure little black silk frock and her youthful sister, Gloria, in peacock blue, added their exotic beauty to the colorful promenade.

I SAW Mrs. John T. J. Cluett (Sallie Courtney), beturned and jewelled, in the orchestra, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bradley, Mrs. Bradley in a gown of green and wrap of silver cloth and fox.

MRS. JAMES JACKSON wore a Paisley wrap over her opera gown, Mrs. Gerald Bramwell a green velvet wrap and rose chiffon dress, and Mrs. Francis H. Appleton, Jr., a seal wrap and gown of mauve.

MRS. J. LOVELL LITTLE—who, by the way, is an aunt of the Braggiotti girls—was her usual stately self in soft gray velvet.

ALL THE YOUNG GIRL DEVOtees of opera were in the very smart throng. Louise Thayer, in velvet frock and printed velvet wrap with fox furs, Nancy Wentworth in pale lavender taffeta, Louise James in black taffeta, Theodora Ayer in a pastel tinted silk and Sally Dexter in rose with a Liberty scarf promenaded between acts.

ALTOGETHER AS brilliant an outpouring as the Opera House has held during the present season, a fine prophecy, surely, for a stupendous climax at the end.

HUSBAND ASKS $25,000 FOR SINGER'S LOVE

Mrs. Gertrude Hammond Runney, church and concert singer, is the central figure in a $25,000 alienation of affections suit which her husband, William F. Runney, manufacturer's agent, has brought against Ernest F. Lee of No. 313 Tremont street.

For several years Mrs. Runney sang in a leading Back Bay church as soloist. She has also appeared on the concert stage and has sung many times from Boston radio stations.

"Truda" Sullivan lived in Milton when, at the age of sixteen, she married "Bill" Runney. That was in 1914.

They lived together in Lynn, Revere and Allston and entertained lavishly. She is known on the concert stage as Gertrude Ainsworth.

According to the allegations in the legal papers, they separated January 1 last.

SEVEN RESCUED IN WEST END BLAZE

Family Forced to Climb Down Ladders as Smoke Blocks Stairways

Clambering down extension ladders as the flames swept their home at No. 37 Spring street, West End, early today, Michael Soroski and his wife carried their two infant children to safety.

The fire started in the basement of the building and the smoke was so thick on the upper floors that firemen could not make their way up the stairs to rescue the family.

The blaze was discovered by John Ginsburg, who turned in an alarm. Patrolmen Lynch and Murphy entered the building before the firemen arrived and led Samuel Rosenblath, his wife and eighteen-months' old child to the street.

Ladders were erected as soon as Truck 24 arrived, and the Soroski family brought down from their third floor apartment. The rescued Soroski children are Sophia, two years old, and Walter, aged four. None of the family was injured, but all suffered from smoke.

KID M'COY WILL BE TRIED FOR ROBBERY

Los Angeles, Feb. 6.—"Kid" McCoy, convicted of slaying Mrs. Theresa Mora, has asked the public defender to represent him in his trial on charges of robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, set for February 16. The charges grew out of a shooting affray in and near Mrs. Mora's antique shop the morning after her death.

MONTEMEZZI OPERA WELL PRESENTED

"Love of Three Kings" One of Chicago Company's Best Offerings

By MOSES SMITH.

It will be many a day before the audience which crowded the Opera House last night forgets the evening's performance. Italo Montemezzi's "Love of the Three Kings" was the opera. Montemezzi attended the performance.

No sooner had he entered his box than a great wave of applause started, before which the composer had to bow. At the close of the second act there was an even greater ovation, when Giorgio Polacco, the conductor, answering a curtain-call, addressed the audience briefly, referring to Montemezzi as the greatest living Italian composer.

With the assistance of a powerful tragedy by Sam Benelli, Montemezzi has created a magnificent work of art in this opera. There is beautiful love music, beautifully sung last night, which tears at the very heart.

There are four principal parts, and the cast was splendid. Mary Garden was Flora, the woman who loved well but not wisely. Her acting was restrained, free from non-essential gestures, and most convincing. She was singing well, too. Fernand Anseau sang the role of Avito, lover of Flora. His singing was well modulated to the dramatic action. Similar praise should be bestowed on Georges Baklanoff as Manfredo, husband of Flora, and Virgilio Lazzari as Archibaldo, the blind father of Manfredo.

Mr. Polacco's direction of the production was brilliant. With the composer looking on, he seemed a little nervous at the start, but it did not affect the fine quality of his conducting.

BOTH WHEELER AND OIL CASES PROBED BY JURORS

Washington, Feb. 6.—The government's naval oil lease cases and the new proceedings in the cast of Senator Wheeler of Montana, both were considered today by a special Federal Grand Jury. Having been occupied for several days in considering the Wheeler case, the jury was called on an hour by the government oil counsel to hear tesetimony by M. D. Thatcher and L. P. Rule, officers of the First National Bank of Pueblo, Colo., in connection with the new inquiries into the oil leases.

It was this bank whose deposits and withdrawals, as connected with private transactions of Albert B. Fall, became a matter of interest before the Senate oil committee a year ago.

REMOVAL OF ALASKA GOVERNOR DEMANDED

Washington, Feb. 6.—Removal from office of Governor Scott C. Bone of Alaska was asked in a sworn complaint filed at the White House today by John W. Frame, who declared the Governor had been instrumental in depriving him of the office of Republican National Committeeman from the Territory after he had been duly elected as such. The complaint was referred to Secretary Work of the Interior Department. The complaint also charged that Governor Bone had made bad appointments to office.

Milton Fights Rabies With New Serum

To prevent the spread of rabies, the Milton Board of Health has inaugurated a clinic for dogs. Dog owners may bring their pets to the office of the board tomorrow afternoon and the afternoon of February 14 for inoculation with an immunizing serum.

"Rabies has been on the increase in Massachusetts for five years and the muzzling of dogs has proved ineffective," the board states.

KANSAS CITY MOVIE WRECKED BY BOMB

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 6 I.N.S.)—Windows were shattered for half a block and the lobby of the World in Motion, downtown movie theatre, was wrecked by a bomb early today, set off, police believe, as the culmination of a year's war between the theatre and the Motion Picture Operators' Union.

Police are endeavoring to connect the killing, an hour later, of Wade Rolls, suspect in the bombing, by Patrolman Stephens, after a duel in the prisoner's boarding place.

JUDGE ORDERS RUM CASE GUN RETURNED

Assistant Federal Prosecutor Produces Weapon From Seized Schooner

The case of the Mahjorie Buckman, Nova Scotia schooner seized on rum row last October by the Coast Guard cutter Tampa under the British-American liquor treaty, will be heard at an early date, probably next week, Judge Morton indicated today when he disposed of several points of law in favor of the schooner.

Matthew L. McGrath, counsel for the schooner, evoked the indignation of the court when he declared property of the schooner's crew, seized by a prize crew, had not been returned. McGrath asked that Assistant United States Attorney Lawrence Curtis, 2d, who is in charge of the case, be adjudged in contempt of court.

McGrath declared $350 of the $1,250 taken from Harold Young, supercargo of the schooner; a revolver, clothing, safety razors and other personal property had never been returned to the crew.

Curtis admitted he had the revolver in his possession, but denied he had taken the other property. Judge Morton ordered Curtis to get the revolver, which was brought into court and turned over to Attorney McGrath.

Attorney McGrath told the court Curtis had been led astray by teachings of the kindergarten school conducted by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General at Washington in charge of liquor prosecutions.

Cost Only $485 to Live a Year in California

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 6 (Universal)—Despite the high cost of living, the average Californian above the age of twenty-one can be entertained with the food, clothing and shelter necessary to live for a year at a minimum cost.

This estimate was announced today by E. B. Cass, director of the State Bureau of Vital Statistics, in a table showing the costs of bare subsistence in California after all luxuries have been deducted.

A minimum expenditure of $120 is required to maintain the average individual during the first year of life, according to Cass, who added that the sum includes the cost of living taxes.

Jack Dempsey Stirred at Linking of His Name With Bill Hart's Wife

Almost Fifty Girls Have Been Reported Engaged to the Champion and He Did Not Mind

("I wouldn't marry one of the Dolly sisters on a bet—but I might marry them both if polygamy wasn't against the law," says Jack Dempsey, and tells why in this chapter.)

By JACK DEMPSEY.
(As Told to W. B. Seabrook.)
CHAPTER XIII.

WHY do women fall so hard for Jack Dempsey?

I have asked the champion himself, but he is too modest to talk about it—his natural modesty has really survived in a manner that is almost miraculous, considering the way girls and women flatter him and run after him.

Estelle Taylor, Peggy Joyce, Sylvia Jocelyn, Bebe Daniels, Jeanie Dolly, of the Dolly Sisters, Mary Lewis, Ann Pennington, Doris Keane—he has been reported engaged to them all—fall in this classification.

I never know beforehand which of them he is going to tell me about when I do manage occasionally to get him started on this general subject. He doesn't like to talk about it at all. I usually manage to lead him into it indirectly. I got him to talk about the Dolly Sisters by asking if he was seasick when he went to Europe last year on the Aquitania. And this is what he said:

"Yes, they said I was going to marry one of the Dolly sisters, and I'll tell you about that. I wouldn't marry ONE of them on a bet—but I might marry them BOTH, if they'd have me, and polygamy wasn't against the law.

POTENTIAL BIGAMY.

"You needn't laugh so much. I don't mean that altogether for a joke. I think they like each other better than they will ever like any man. They'd have to marry a couple of brothers or another pair of twins and all live together in the same house to be happy. You know Rosie was once married to Jean Schwartz, and Jennie was married to Harry Fox. It didn't take. They both got divorced, and I'm sure the main reason was that they weren't happy when they were separated from each other.

"It used to be respectable for a man to have two wives. King Solomon had about a thousand, didn't he? And in some countries, they tell me, kings and people like that still have more than one.

"Gee, that would be a swell idea for the Dolly sisters! They could marry the Shah of Persia—and I guess he'd be willing, for he was crazy about them when they danced together at Biarritz—and then they could both be queens and sit on a couple of thrones, dressed exactly alike, with the Shah on another throne in the middle. Hot stuff! The guy that separates them by marrying just one, is headed, according to my notion, for trouble and the divorce court. They're real twins. One of them's not happy anywhere without the other.

"You want to know how this story about my being engaged to Rosie started. We figured out it must be Rosie, for at the same time they had me engaged they had Jennie engaged to Alexander Cochrane, that rich guy who was Ganna-Walska's first husband.

"You know they never use those tricky Hungarian names of theirs except on the stage—Rozika or Rozinski or something like that, and Yanek when you get to know 'em they're just Rosie and Jennie.

"I never really got to know them until that trip over on the Aquitania to Europe last year. I had met them in New York and Los Angeles, but on the boat we got to be real friends. And I'm here to tell you we had a lot of fun.

"That was a great trip for me, anyway. You know it was the first time I had ever been on a big boat, and everything was new and strange, and I was like a kid at a picnic or a Christmas party.

"My notion of traveling in a boat was a little coupe-up stateroom like you have on a train, with a couple of bunks and that's all.

"Well, Doc Kearns and I had a room as big as a hotel room, with twin beds and tables and a lounge and pictures on the wall, and everything you could have on land.

"A stroll around the deck was like walking down Fifth avenue, and that boat had everything in it, a swimming pool and a gymnasium, and stores where you could buy almost anything you wanted, and I don't know what else.

"The first night out, smooth and nobody sick, we went down to the Ritz Grill for dinner—imagine a Ritz Grill on a boat—and I looked around to see who I'd see that I might know, and there were David Griffith and Carl Randall, the dancer, and Lillian Herlein, the singer, and at another table the Dolly Twins, looking like a couple of peaches out of the same basket.

"They called, 'Hello, Jack,' and I went over, and after that it's the truth that I saw more of them than of anybody else on he boat. We just seemed to naturally hit it off. They're the best fun of any two girls I know, full of pep, and always happy—good sports and nice to everybody—that's what makes 'em so popular off the stage, I guess.

"We kidded a lot, because we thought the same sorts of things were funny, and I like to dance and they showed me new steps, and then when I found out that they like to play pinochle that was another thing that helped us to hit it off.

FIZZ VERSUS MILK.

"One night they announced they were going to give a party for me in the grill—a dinner party—and I thought they'd have a long table and invite a bunch of others on the boat to it—but when we went down there were just three places, with a lot of flowers piled up in the middle of the table, and they laughed and said, 'No, we're giving this party just for you.' Like a couple of kids.

"They had champagne at dinner and they wanted me to drink some—everybody did on the boat—and I don't really drink anything—and Jennie says, 'Oh, I suppose you want a bottle of milk.' And I said, 'Why milk?' And Rosie pipes up, 'Well, Georges Carpentier drank milk and we thought all babies like you and him did.'

"They're like that in their kidding, which is what helps make it so amusing. One starts something and the other finishes it. So I had a glass of champagne, just so as not to be kidded any more, and then pretended to see double, which is not so hard where the Dolly sisters are, for they do look exactly alike.

"They are not really alike at that. When they are dressed the same and sitting still, not moving and not saying anything, you can't tell them apart. They are exactly the same size and their coloring is the same. But when they begin to move about and talk there's a difference you soon get.

"Jennie is sort of boss or leader. You can tell it by the way she walks, a sort of free swing more like a man, and she calls Rosie 'Little Sister,' and Rosie is just a shade more gentle and soft.

"Well, you want truth and not fake stuff, and there never was any serious talk between us about being engaged or married. Neither of them had any such idea, and neither had I. The first we knew about it was the wireless news bulletins that they send out from New York and print every day on the boat. Somebody had sent it back to the New York newspapers that I was reported to be engaged to one of the Dolly sisters, and then it came back through the air. They didn't care.

"They knew it would soon die down, and they kidded about that, too. They said, 'So Jack, hear the news? Which one of us are you going to marry? And after you do, how are you going to know which one you've got? We might switch on you just before the ceremony.

PRINCE VERSUS CHAMP.

"And I said, 'Well, I guess the only safe thing to do is to marry you both.' And they said, 'Well, this boat is headed for England, and you'll have to go to Turkey to do that.'

"All right,' I said. 'some of my relatives were Mormons anyway. I never did believe much in this heredity stuff before, but here it is coming out.'

"And Jennie said:

"'No, Jack, I guess you'll have to marry me—because Rosie is going to marry the Prince of Wales.'

"And I said, "All right, I'll marry you if Rosie will promising to let us come and visit her and her husband at Westminster Abbey or Windsor castle, or wherever it is she's going to live when she gets to be queen.' She said, 'I'm afraid the Prince of Wales might be jealous, but you can come and visit us in our own house in London, and we hope if you have time you will.'

"It's no wonder everybody likes both those girls. They're good-hearted, and they're a riot. I've never known anybody that's more fun to play around with, or better company.

"One of the engagement stories I was really sore about was when they started the rumor that I was going to marry Winifred Hart. That was nothing but a dirty lie that had no sort of truth, even in fun, behind it.

"She used to be Winifred Westover, you know, motion picture actress, and wife of Bill Hart. I hardly know her at all. But I know Bill. He's a great guy and a square guy. I'd do anything for him.

"When I was training in Atlantic City, Dan McKettrick brought Winifred Hart down to make some pictures of the two of us together for publicity. That was every single thing there was to it, and I forgot all about it.

"Then, quite a while later, came all that terrible trouble Bill Hart had and the separation from his wife, which I'm glad to hear they fixed up afterward.

"They told an awful lot of lies on Hart at the time, said he had beat his wife or something like that, and I know Hart well enough to know that he'd cut off his hand sooner than do a thing like that. Whatever trouble they did have was something altogether different. There was a lot of difference between their ages. Bill liked a quiet home life and Winifred liked the movie life.

"While they were separated, there came that crazy thing about an imaginary baby Bill Hart was the father of with another woman. I don't quite remember the straight of that, except that it was proved Bill Hart had nothing to do with it.

FIFTY FAIR ONES.

"Some woman in New York, by the name of Elizabeth McCauley, I think, went sort of nuts, really crazy in a way, you know, over Bill Hart's picture, and she borrowed a baby from somewhere and swore Bill Hart was its father. He denied it, and of course nobody believed him—and then, hang it, the woman herself got a change of heart and confessed it was all a frame-up, and told where she had got the baby and everything.

"Well, about that same time, when it was all over the front pages of the newspapers, and when Bill Hart's wife still believed it, and was trying to get a divorce from him, somebody dug up those publicity pictures and started the story that Winifred Hart was divorcing my friend, Bill Hart, to marry me!

"There was nothing to it at all—not a shadow of anything. I hardly know the lady. But that rumor kept grape-vining around, got into some Western newspapers and stayed alive, until the Harts had a real sure-enough baby of their own, and were reconciled, and went back to live with each other, and ended all the rumors together.

"I wouldn't tell you about this at all, but I've promised to tell you the exact truth about every girl I have ever been reported engaged to, and through no fault of hers or mine either, there was this story—and I guess the truth won't hurt any of us.

"You know, Doc Kearns and I once made a list, just to see, of the girls I had been reported to be going to marry. It counted up to almost fifty, but there was a whole slew of them in the list that neither Kearns nor I had ever heard of. I was only in Berlin three or four days, and there were two dames they were going to have me marry there. And there was that cloak model in Paris who thought it was Leap Year.

"And there was a girl in New England—a nice girl, too—who got cuckoo and told her mother that she was coming to New York to marry me. And her mother found a photograph of me in the girl's bureau with my name written and something, as if I had written it myself, saying, 'To My Darling Wife,' or something like that. And her poor father got on quite a rush, all excited, and came down to New York with the picture, and I had a tough time making him understand that I'd never even heard of his daughter and that I hadn't written what was on the picture. It wasn't even like my handwriting. The girl had written it herself.

DENIES THIS ONE.

"I could tell you a lot of funny things like that that have happened to me since I got to be champ. Women are a queer lot. I don't want you to get the notion that I think I'm any Romeo. I'm not any beauty even since I got my nose fixed and the shelk stuff's not in my line. I think maybe I've got the lowdown on it—and maybe that's why it hasn't given me any swelled head. I hope it hasn't given me a swelled head, and I'm honest when I say I don't believe it has.

"And the low-down as I've got it is something like this. For quite a while people have been talking and writing and hot-airing about this new-man stuff and this brute stuff and about how that's the kind of a man a woman really loves. I don't believe it's so—not about American women anyway.

"But they read the books and get to believing it themselves, and maybe their own sweetheart is a sap with skinny legs and a thin chest, or maybe he's a Willie-Boy, and they get a notion that what they need is a cave man, and then they pick on me, not because I'm handsome or because they'd really like me—but just because I happen to be the heavyweight champion. I haven't said very well what I mean, but maybe you get the idea. It must be something like that.

"Of course, I'm not talking about the girls I've really known and played around with. I think they've got too much sense for such bunk. I'm talking about girls like the one I told you about in New England, and like that girl in Paris. If you'd see some of the crazy letters I've got from women and girls I've never met, and who ought to know better, you'd understand what I'm getting at. Some of them are plum crazy. They don't want me to kiss them. They want me to beat 'em up—or at least that's the way their letters sound. Well, I'll leave that to old Frank Tinney. Why don't they write to him? It's not in my line.

Serious operation avoided

Resinol healed stubborn sore

Elyria, Ohio, March 1:—"I feel it my duty and pleasure to thank you for the wonderful cure your Resinol salve has wrought for my husband, who suffered from an open sore on the back of his neck for four years. Several doctors said that it was a cancer and advised its removal, but it was so near the base of the brain that we feared an operation. I had found Resinol Ointment so effective for cuts, burns and similar things that I induced my husband to try that. After using only two jars of Resinol, the sore entirely healed—every trace of it has disappeared. Resinol certainly was a God-send to us!" (Signed) Mrs. E. E. Kennedy, 243 E. 8th St.

ALCOHOL-CRAZED MAN SUICIDE AT LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Feb. 6.—Driven insane by a bout of rank alcohol and after inflicting wounds about his head, face and throat, Harold Newton died at the Lawrence General Hospital. His death has given rise to an investigation of a sweeping nature which may involve certain of the liquor dispensing rings.

Investigation is being directed particularly at the source of a certain drug store mixture which, it is claimed, Newton drank freely. According to the police, the mixture is poisonous.

CANDLER TURNS PEARLS OVER TO GOVEHNMENT

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 6.—Asa G. Candler, Jr., who was reported in San Francisco dispatches to have been in possession of pearls smuggled into this country, today declared that at the time he purchased them he had no knowledge they had been brought here illegally, and on learning this had surrendered the jewels to the government authorities.

SURPRISE DUE IN X-WORD CONTEST

Another string of surprises is in store for The Boston Evening American's Weekly Crossword Puzzle Contests this Saturday.

Many will regret they stayed out of the past week's sprint.

Many more will regret they didn't see this week's contest through. They will learn the reason why this Saturday, when the third six-day dash comes to a close.

Incidentally, in yesterday's puzzle folks found that horizontal No. 6 had no reference. For the benefit of those folks we'll add one: "A nerve attack brought on by alcohol, abbreviated."

Hundreds of the thirty-day participants have written in and called up asking whether the American planned to publish the correct answers to the marathon runout. Risty puzzles! Rather too much, don't you think? The Puzzle Editor would like to satisfy all curious people, but it's a rather formidable job.

One day more and the third contest will be ready for the perusal of the Weekly Puzzle Editor. The same list of prizes are offered you: $100 for first, $50 for second prize, $25 for runner-up and a string of fifteen $5 awards. Why hesitate? It may be too late soon. Plunge in while the scooping up of the spare coin is good.

Don't forget to send along your communication of not more than 200 words telling what you think are the educational values of crossword puzzles.

The fun, the mental exercise and the money are there. Make the most of each and all.

GARVEY IS ARRESTED, FACES PENITENTIARY

New York, Feb. 6.—Marcus Garvey, self-styled president of the "African Republic" and head of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, will be on his way by the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta by tomorrow, Assistant United States Attorney Mattuck said today. Garvey was arrested on a warrant issued when he failed to appear in Federal Court after his appeal from his conviction for using the mails to defraud had been denied.

Calls Him "Radio"

JAMES BROWN.

Dorchester boy of six, who wins prize for naming the new tiger at the Franklin Park Zoo.

YOUTH, 6, TELLS HOW HE WON TIGER PRIZE

"Well, we was listening on the radio, Matthew an' me, an' I said, 'Name him Radio.'"

With the mien of a gentleman and in the words of a young scholar, Jimmy Brown of No. 109 Park street, Dorchester, who resides on the Dorchester Town Field when labors are light, gave his own modest story today anent his naming of Boston's brand new Bengal tiger.

Jimmy is just six years old. In his own words, he has "a brother, Matthew, who is ten and a brother and a baby who ain't as old or as big as me."

Through his naming of the new tiger at Boston's Franklin Park Zoo, young Jimmy comes into possession of the $10 prize offered by the Boston Evening American to the schoolboy or schoolgirl selecting the name deemed most appropriate by the Park Commissioners.

"I named him Radio because he's lea' like the radio; everybody's talking about him," declared the Dorchester youngster whose eyes are nearly as big as himself.

GLAD TIGER IS CAGED.

"Matthew was pickin' out names an' said, 'Name him Columbia,' but I thought Radio was better an' my father did, too, even if Matthew is ten years old.

"I ain't seen the tiger yet, but when I do I'm going to tell him I thought of his name. No, I won't be afraid of him. Anyway he's in a cage, ain't he?"

Little Jimmy seemed a bit anxious until assured that the cage certainly did surround the Bengal at any and all times.

The Dorchester youngster is in the first grade at the Gibson School, Fields Corner, and he told Miss Patterson, his teacher, of his good fortune today. He was certain that Miss Patterson would be "tickled to death."

Jimmy's Dad also told his side of the exciting story. "We were looking through the Radio Program section of the Boston Evening American one evening, and saw the article about the tiger contest.

PRIZE AWARDED BOY.

"After reading it, I asked my oldest boy, Matthew, what he thought would be a good name for the tiger, and before he could answer, Jimmy piped up with, 'Name him Radio,'" the proud father said.

The name "Radio" was chosen after hours and hours of deliberation on the part of the judges, four members of the Boston Park Commission, Chairman James B. Shea, and Commissioner Charles A. Coolidge finally decided that "Radio," submitted by Master Jimmy, was the most appropriate name. In this contention, Commissioner Myron P. Lewis dissented.

Deputy Commissioner William P. Long, who had charge of all letters, stated that the names Clemenceau, Clem, Benton, Dux, Tammany, Rex, Tecumseh were deliberated upon.

SCHOOL ROW IS BIG ISSUE IN BROOKLINE

As a result of the recent controversy over an extension of the high school sessions, Brookline will have a real school committee contest at the election next Tuesday.

Mrs. Lotta Bradburn Schlek of No. 125 Addington road and Attorney Francis A. Nichols of No. 122 Pleasant street have been endorsed by the Public School Association, an organization of parents, as candidates for the committee.

The Public School Association is waging an active campaign in the hope of defeating two of the present members of the committee, and getting their own candidates instead.

At the same time the interests of committeemen whose terms expire this year is being protected by the citizens' committee, which is sending out circulars explaining that the extra half-hour was added to the High School session after thorough consideration.

The parents, on the other hand, declare the real issue is the dictatorial attitude of the school committee, who refused to heed the protests of 90 per cent. of the fathers and mothers of High School students. For that reason, they claim, they are seeking representation on the committee in order that their rights may be respected.

Another interesting contest is that between Timothy Burke, present incumbent, and Alexander Sutherland, Jr., for membership to the water board.

A PARTNER OF SUNLIGHT

Cod-liver oil has aptly been called the partner of sunlight. Both out of Nature's storehouse of energy are of supreme importance to a child with rickets.

Scott's Emulsion

and sunlight have been used for decades to give strength to weak-bones. A little of Scott's Emulsion with each feeding does wonders for a malnourished child or adult.

Keep your boy or girl out in the sunlight and give them Scott's Emulsion everyday—regularly!

Conscience Costs Holdup Man His Life

Chicago, Feb. 6.—A holdup man's conscience cost him his life. Arthur Falkenstein robbed taxi drivers, but always took their names and addresses, promising that he would return what he took as soon as he obtained work.

After robbing the third driver he was shot and killed by a detective as he stood beside the cab jotting down the driver's name.

FARMERS' COUNCIL ASKS WOODLOCK TO EXPLAIN

Washington, Feb. 6.—The Farmers' National Council has requested Chairman Smith of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee to invite it and "explain his connection with railroads and bankers." The council, in announcing its request today, said it was opposed to Mr. Woodlock's appointment.

Help Your Children Get This Free Wagon By Spring

There are so many happy hours your little tots will have with this wonderful Brookside Coaster Wagon.

We wish it were possible, in this advertisement, to show you how big and handsome it is—but if we used the whole page there wouldn't be half space enough.

It's really a "whopper"—long and sleek and low-hung like the thoroughbred speedster it is.

And painted a durable, beautiful brown. And sturdy enough to "laugh off" any attempts of investigating kiddies to pull it apart. This wagon's made to be "treated rough."

See it—at the Brookside Store nearest you. Take little Johnny and Betty along. Watch them "spot" the steel disc wheels and rubber tires. And it runs on ball bearings, too.

If you have ever priced Coaster Wagons at stores where they are sold, you'll immediately know that, for a wagon as good as this one, you would be asked to pay $10 to $15.

But you can get it free for your children by saving only 250 labels and cartons from the Brookside Groceries and Food Products you buy.

The Brookside Store manager will be glad to tell you all you want to know about this offer. Ask him today.

NEVER need you pay more than the low Brookside prices. For, wherever you might trade, better quality groceries could not possibly be available. Big volume, wasteless management and Cash and Carry enable us to serve you and save you money. Let Brookside set the standard for the prices that you pay.

U. S. DELEGATES QUIT OPIUM CONFERENCE

Chairman Porter Says Purpose of Parley Can Never Be Accomplished

Geneva, Feb. 6 (A.P.)—The American delegation has withdrawn from the International Opium Conference. Representative Porter and his associates plan to leave Geneva and to sail for home next Thursday on the steamship President Harding.

Mr. Porter today officially informed the conference that, despite the more than two months of discussion and the repeated adjournments, it was clear that the purpose for which the conference had been called could not be accomplished.

Withdrawal of the American delegation from the conference was authorized by President Coolidge. In his message to Mr. Porter, Mr. Coolidge said he regretted the conference had reached no satisfactory agreement.

The American withdrawal was announced in a letter from Mr. Porter to M. M. Zahle, president of the conference, saying:

"In pursuance of the authorization of the President of the United States, the American delegation, to its deep regret, finds itself unable longer to participate in the deliberations of the opium conference."

Mr. Porter voiced the ire of scientists with Far Eastern possessions when he charged that their attitude toward opium smoking was governed by financial considerations. This drew protests from the British.

imitating the western American bank, where you may see standing quietly in a corner of the lobby a man with a repeating rifle, waiting for any bold up crowd.

IN A GROCERY you find a grocer in command, in a hardware shop it's a hardware man. In a village of beavers, it is some beaver that rules.

In this country of business, OF COURSE, business rules.

THE ONLY TROUBLE is, that this country may learn from Japan or some other country, a lesson more severe than any the French have ever learned. After American business gets that lesson, it will know more than it does now, and will probably have brains enough to protect itself.

American business is slow to protect itself, because protection costs money. The money must be raised by taxation. Big business that runs this country, DOES NOT LIKE taxation. It may like still less, what will probably happen.

MRS. FERGUSON, Governor of the great State of Texas, justifies the opinion of some men that women in office "are queer."

Mrs. Ferguson wants to stimulate cotton production in Texas. Masculine governors have had the same idea. Mrs. Ferguson offers prizes for the best five-acre plot of cotton grown in any convict camp. She selects the convict camp because it can be controlled, and accurate returns obtained.

The "queerness" of the lady lies in this: She offers cash rewards for superior cotton production and will pay the rewards out of her own salary. Many men in office will testify that such conduct is extremely queer, and also sets a bad precedent.

IT IS SUGGESTED that income tax payers be allowed to deduct from taxable income what they have to pay doctors.

If a man makes his income by using machinery he is allowed to deduct from the income whatever he has to spend to keep the machinery in order.

The machinery used by a lawyer, merchant or mechanic is his own body and brain. If he has to spend money to keep that machinery in order and fit to earn revenue, OF COURSE he should be allowed to charge to "repairs" and deduct it from income tax. And also he should be allowed to deduct for each year of wear and tear, a fair charge for DEPLETION.

A coal mine owner charges off "depletion," because his mine is worth less each year.

What about the man whose mine is his brains? That also is worth less each year.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Jad Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which every one should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

HITS HARVARD SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

Lampoon to Issue Another Edition of Numzer, Which Bristled With Ridicule

The Harvard Lampoon's "Business School Number," which was published the first of the week, and which ridiculed the business school at the Cambridge university, has proved so popular that another edition will be printed.

The original edition, consisting of more than 2,500 copies, was exhausted, and many additional demands have been received. The Lampoon says.

"Critics of this number will doubtless remark that the undergraduates do not appreciate at all the very means by which they must some day, most of them, earn their small subsistance of meat and potatoes. Too true, too true, thinks Lampy; but must they therefore be reminded of this fiction world by a second, model slaughterhouse across the river?"

The number is featured by alleged portraits—of a most uncomplimentary nature—of "Famous Men Who Have Taught at Business Schools." "Dr. Pond" is shown addressing the Harvard Business Dames on "The Bad Influence of the Small College on Business School Tone." In the course of the address Dr. Pond is made to declare that had there been a business school in his day "many of his earlier mistakes would have been eliminated."

4 BOOTLEGS CAUGHT IN WILD RUM CHASE

New York, Feb. 6.—Coast Guardsmen of Chatham, No. 161 made this an evil day for the Murdock Brothers of Bay Shore, L. I.

For an hour the cutter reared along in the wake of three fleet rum craft, her guns regularly spouting one-pounders about them. The W. B. Wilhds was the first to heave to, with George Murdock. As he stepped out his boat blew up. The If-You-Dod-Go soon surrendered and Harold and Clinton Murdock were captured. Then the Kid floots cut off powse and William Murdock joined his brothers.

GILCHRIST CO. HEADS SEE BIG TRADE BOOM

A mercantile business that has quadrupled within the past decade was lauded when 1,400 members of the Gilchrist Association, employes of the Gilchrist Company, gathered for the annual "town meeting" of the store in Ford Hall.

Messenger boys, clerks and executives alike, made their way from the store at the close of the day's business to the banquet hall where music and other entertainment augmented the dinner which was in waiting.

President Charles C. Ferris of the Gilchrist Company greeted his cheering employes and thanked them for their loyalty in the past. "Co-operation gets results," he said. "And you here have co-operated at all times to make the Gilchrist Company one of the most successful stores in the city."

Speaking of business conditions of twelve years ago as compared with trade today, Felix Vorenberg, vice-president and sales manager of the company, declared that the business of the firm has grown "by leaps and bounds. It is four times greater than it was a decade past. We are now known not only in the State and in New England, but throughout the country as a very progressive store."

Outlook for a record business in 1925 was forecast by Simon Vorenberg, treasurer of the company. Frederick Vorenberg, assistant treasurer of the company, looking over the assemblage of 400 workers, declared "a happy family such as ours is certainly a shining mark of success."

ATTY. GOREY IS VICTIM OF ERROR

Andrew W. Gorey, prominent attorney and former member of the Legislature, was named, through an error, as having been accused of the theft of $100 in headlines over a news story which appeared in the Boston Evening American on Thursday.

The news story concerned a case on trial in Suffolk Superior Court, in which Henry E. White, who pleaded guilty in Brighton District Court to larceny of $100 from Dwight C. Parker, sought through his counsel, to change a plea of guilty to not guilty.

It was an involved matter and courtroom spectators became confused over the testimony.

Attorney Gorey, on the witness stand, told the court that White came to him and told him that Parker had lost his driving license for operating a car while intoxicated, but that Parker was not driving the car when arrested and had taken the liquor for medicinal purposes.

Gorey said he told White the case might be reopened and accepted a retainer of $40.

Subsequently White came to Gorey and said that Parker wished him (White) to return $100 given to the former to aid in getting Parker's license restored.

When White was arrested for larceny of the $100 Gorey said he advised him to plead guilty, which was done.

Judge Bishop ruled that White might change his plea to "not guilty."

The American is glad of the opportunity to rectify the unintentional mistake and to correct any false impressions which may have arisen as a result of the error.

In 1924, retail merchants of Chicago gave the Chicago Evening American a greater increase in advertising than they gave all the other Chicago papers combined—evening, morning and Sunday included. That increase was 519,306 lines.

The reason for this increase is undoubtedly the tremendous circulation progress made by the Chicago Evening American during the past three years and which has now placed it predominantly first in Chicago's evening paper field.

When a Couple of Orphans Get Married

When a couple of orphans get married there is no paternal shower of gold to start them off with a blare of trumpets.

They must shift for themselves, build a home, pay for it, and save money besides. It's a hard job.

But it's always a comfort to know that they can buy their wedding ring, their silverware, and many other very necessary things from us without taking more than a few dollars a week from the family income.

Diamond Wedding Ring

Even young married couples whose parents are hale and hearty find it economical and more business-like to pay as they earn. It is certainly more conducive to one's self respect to pay a little at a time rather than owe a lot all the time.

East Patchogue, N. Y., Feb. 6.—This old little town boasted a grandstand today for watching the "the end of the world," forecast by the Reformed Seventh Day Adventists to begin at midnight tonight.

Automobiles and Long Island trains brought crowds to Long Pond, an inland sheet adjoining the parcels of Robert Reed, about 35 followers of their leader to heaven on a cloud.

Reed, his wife, their five children and others who believe with Mrs. Margaret Rowen of Los Angeles, Cal., that storms, pestilence, famine and despairing mankind's lot on earth within the next year, were praying at midnight in the shallow pond near here thought and were the cloud that will waft them to golden state, via Hawaii and Indian Ocean, Cal., and Jupiter.

Brother Willard Evans of Babylon, one of Reed's associates, prayed for various countries, for sea today for it.

He said he would not leave the house that he had not paid up his debts, would slink into obscurity with the stroke of twelve. It will be grand and awful, he said.

The apostle believes he will be escorted with a golden harp upon his arrival in heaven. And he possesses the instrument he confided. He will make music upon his zither while traveling with his cohorts on the clouds.

All is in readiness in the Reidt cycle. Reidt has had his self pressed Mrs. Reidt has a new brown dress. Brother Dunning has a gorgeous wig tie.

DEMPSEY ALREADY SIGNED FOR TITLE BOUT WITH GIBBONS

WILLS AND WEINERT PASSED UP

By JACK CONWAY

JACK DEMPSEY has once more flashed the spotlight of public interest on the heavyweight division. The champion's announcement he is ready to defend his title after repeated reports to the effect that Dempsey was going to retire as soon as Estelle Taylor became his bride, are of course his strongest, has stimulated interest in the big fellows.

The various boxing divisions have their followers, but when it comes to the big one, the fans get it in the heavyweight class. Arrangements have already been completed for a bout between Dempsey and Tom Gibbons, the latter a resident of Yankee Stadium in New York the latter part of June.

Tex Rickard, it is hinted, has already signed. He tactfully adds he will soon try to bring Dempsey to terms. That, of course, is well known but a necessary announcement in the interest in a heavyweight bout.

The Jersey City boy has not signed anything as yet, but he has asked for the privilege of retirement and Los Angeles. Followed Gibbons right, it was the new champion, Dempsey's announcement he was ready for the trip of Gibbons and Rickard's manager, to New York and Richard and the announcement that Gibbons had signed.

RICKARD, wise promoter, knew that the only thing necessary for a title bout was to get agreement to terms. So the first thing he did was to sign up the champion. The addition of Gibbons was merely a matter of form. Dempsey was the hero of the bout. He would draw a capacity crowd with Gibbons, Wills or Weinert. The title holder named Gibbons as he opponent because he is not as dangerous as Wills or Weinert.

THIS writer does not believe tabloid has confused Dempsey. This opinion is held by most other close followers of the ring game. We believe that none is smarter now finding his way to the front with the only one to dethrone the champion.

Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney are New England's leading heavyweight contenders. As both of these men are in their early twenties, they will be in their prime when Dempsey, Gibbons, Wills and Weinert are past the crest of their fighting ability.

SHARKEY will receive his opportunity to meet Weinert in the return bout at the Garden A. A. show at Mechanics Building on next Tuesday night. Tex Rickard rated Weinert fourth in the list of the world's leading heavyweights. The Newark Adonis recently gave Louis Firpo one of the most decisive defeats of his career, cutting him to ribbons. Weinert now wants to fight it out with Gibbons and Wills for the right to meet Dempsey.

SHARKEY, full of confidence and youthful, may tip over Weinert's plans. Jack has already met the Newark lad once and looked took place in Newark following Weinert's win over Firpo. For five rounds Weinert outpointed Sharkey. The latter then got the range and accordingly knocked his opponent for a loss in the next round of the going in the latter part of the

Inside Golf

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 61 Golf Champions, "Built many successful scholars," says "Chick" Evans.

Telling golfers how to accomplish the details of the swing correctly is always fraught with the possibility that they will immediately center their mind on that point and thus fall directly into [illegible]

[illegible] results from cautioning players to keep the right elbow close to the side in the back swing. Given this caution, the golfer keeps this elbow snug in there and the [illegible] the right hand pulls against the left hand near the top of the back swing and the club is thus pulled out of its true oblique plane. The correct instruction at this point is: Keep the right elbow close to the side at the beginning of the back swing, then let it take its natural course.

Although the season has many weeks to go the two games at the Arena tonight and tomorrow night will have a vital bearing on the championship of the Eastern Division of the American Amateur Hockey Association.

The Maroon Hornets are to pay the Maples a visit and the I. A. A. L. champions leave the Eastern two points in order for the A. A. A. to start tomorrow night a game on ever to me with westerners it will be necessary for the Maples to stop the Hornets tonight.

Since the Maples have already beaten the Hornets twice on the Pittsburgh rink, they stand an excellent chance of downing Dick Manners' team tonight.

The Hornets are here with their full strength. Joe Sills has recovered from the shock he experienced in the lamentable accident to Leo Hughes. He had planned to retire from hockey but to felt that he owed it to the Hornets to remain a while.

The other game tonight featuring Newton High and Cambridge Latin is an important one in the Interscholastic League series. Both Dr. Oscar Hedlund, coach of Newton and Leander McDonald, coach of Cambridge Latin, have brought their teams up to the championship of May.

THE CASE OF FISHER

Bob Fisher may give business as his reason for resigning the Harvard head coachship but you can bet not make his friends believe it. There is some underlying motive, something other than business but Bob is good sport enough to conceal it-even to his most intimate acquaintances.

Bob Fisher

If you asked us our opinion we would say that Fisher would not leave the job again because he was not guaranteed a free rein

Without a free rein no man can do his best work. If you cannot name your own assistants and dictate to them in your own way then your task is a hopeless one. That was just about the situation with Fisher.

The plan was to put Fisher in as head coach and give Major Charley Daly charge of the backfield. Anybody who knows Major Daly also knows that he will not be "bossed." He is of that temperament. He wants things his own way. If Fisher were head coach he could not dictate to Daly. Under these conditions it would be impossible for Fisher to put all his policies into effect. Still he would have to take the responsibility and be made the "goat" if Harvard lost. Rather than do this he passed out, and, being a clever boy, put it under the head of "business."

Daly cannot become head coach unless he resigns from the army. He will hardly do this because it takes too much red tape to get back. He will probably be satisfied to act in the capacity under a figurehead. But who will be the figurehead? That is a tough one to answer. Nobody wants a lame job where he can't do things and that is just what the new Harvard head coach is going to be up against unless Daly himself decides to quit army life and cut his fortunes on the gridiron.

Charley Daly

If Jimmy O'Connell is indicted in the baseball scandal he will never be extradited. At least that is our opinion. The Coast fans feel that Jimmy has been made the "goat" from the very start and you may be sure that extradition will be fought to the bitter end with Jimmy, a native son, having the better of it.

HOW GOOD IS HUSSEY?

When Loren Murchison was in Boston last week he anxiously inquired about Frank Hussey, one of his team mates at the Olympics and at present a student at Boston College. "Murch" had seen him in new for some time. His questions were directed to a Frank Hussey local college sprinter ad a good one, too.

Trophies said Loren, "how good is Hussey now?"

Well replied the interrogated, "Hussey is so good, when I leave the mark he is at the five-yard mark, when I am at the twenty-yard mark he is at the thirty and when I am at the seventy he is on his way to the lockers."

Murchison was chagrined.

TIPLITZ RUNS OUT OF BOUT WITH ZIVIC

By RINGSIDE

"We saw three good bouts and it didn't cost us anything, as we are going to get our money back."

Such was the philosophy of 2,500 boxing fans when Joe Tipiltz of Philadelphia ran out of it in bout with Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh sensation billed for the Armory A. A. at Mechanics Building.

As a result of the action Tipiltz will be suspended in Massachusetts and United States where boxing rules rule.

The main event was to be a ten-round affair for the benefit of the receipts for which were to go to Zivic had been guaranteed $3,000 with a 30 per cent privilege.

When Referee Eugene Buckley ordered the fighters to their corners after the first round Tipiltz was seen to walk over to Zivic and shake hands with him. Then he walked to his own corner and sat down.

Buckley walked over to Tipiltz and asked him if he had enough. Tipiltz replied that he had not and that he was willing to continue. Buckley then ordered the fighters to their corners and the bout was resumed.

Tipiltz, however, made no attempt to fight during the second round and Buckley again walked over to him

USE PROPER DRY CELLS FOR 199's

A dry cell of the size known as No 6 should never be attached to a circuit in which the current demand [illegible] runs over one-quarter of an ampere. This means that one dry cell will operate satisfactorily a single WD11 or WD12 when either of these tubes [illegible] the case of the UV199, which consumes a current of only six hundredths of an ampere, one set of cells will supply three of the tubes without undue drain.

But in addition to the current demand each tube requires consideration of its filament potential. The WD11 is a one and a half volt tube and can, therefore, be lighted from a single dry cell. The UV199 on the other hand requires a potential of 3 volts. Three cells will supply this potential for a short time, but in order to maintain the potential well up to 3 volts it is best to make the battery one of three cells of four and a half volts and consume the [illegible]

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Lung Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote That Is Pleasant to Take.

Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, Creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co, Atlanta, Ga.

CREOMULSION

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

RENTS in down town buildings are getting so high that it won't be long before the business men will be moving their furniture into the street and opening offices on the side walk.

IF you're lucky enough to get a space near the corner the traffic cop can be your office boy.

AND by paying him a couple of dollars a month he'll be glad to prevent pedestrians out of your office.

BUSINESS men who occupy side walk suites would need very little equipment as they could use the rubbish cans for filing cabinets.

AND the street lights could be turned into desk lamps.

THEY could also do away with the expense of a mail clerk by moving their desks over near a letter box.

AND ten minutes after the postman brought you a bunch of bills the street cleaner could be sweeping them up.

THE meters on the taxicabs parked along the curb could be used for adding machines.

AND instead of spending a lot of money for stamps, you could hand your letters to different pedestrians and ask them to deliver them on their way up town.

IF you happened to have a letter going to Chicago, all you'd have to do would be to watch the different automobiles until you saw one with an Illinois license on it.

HE might be a tourist from Decatur but Chicago's only a couple of hundred miles out of his way.

IF you had a special delivery letter for your own town, you could turn in allfire alarm and hand it to the man on the hook and ladder as he rushed by.

YOU wouldn't have to go to the usual expense of buying five gallon bottles of distilled water for the office if you moved your desk over near a hydrant.

THERE'D be no light bills to pay either, because instead of an electric heater you could use a hot water bug.

YOUR office would always be nice and warm as you wouldn't have any doors or windows to be left open.

AND instead of telephoning to your clients you could holler good and loud and the wind would blow your voice all over town.

YOU could ask a question on one gust of wind and get an answer back on the next breeze.

THE only disadvantage of opening an office on the sidewalk is that so many pedestrians would be petting your stenographer that you wouldn't get a chance to do any of it yourself.

Why Millions of Mothers Now Rely Upon Vicks

Modern mothers know that too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach.

Vicks comes in salve form and is applied externally—can be freely used without the slightest harmful effect.

For croup and children's colds you just rub Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. The ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine—are released as vapors by the body heat and inhaled with every breath all night long. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

IT is in Lima, Pizarro's City of the Kings, that one finds all that remains of the old Inca civilization. Here one can still see mute testimony to the fact that many hundreds of years ago a whole civilization that no longer exists, thrived and flourished.

Their abode huts are merely faint mounds on the ground, they are crumbling into dust rapidly. They are all that remains of the culture that was so ruthlessly destroyed by Pizarro in his search for gold. The stones that were transported and cut with most minute care to build the palaces and temples of the Incas are now being broken up to pave motor highways.

In its place is a modern city that contains a number of beautiful churches and one of the oldest universities in the Western Hemisphere. It is a city of Spanish mansions with balconies and grill work and elaborate statuary.

And all through this town, the ancient touches the modern. The cobble stones that have been worn smooth by hundreds of years of the tramping and walking of barefooted Indians and the little slippers of ladies and the great boots of grand seniors, must now accustom themselves to the sound and the feel of street cars and motors.

Proud ladies in mantillas and great tortoise shell combs still lean over the balconies of their houses to hear the serenade of their wooers, as in days of old.

They See a Strange Plant in India.

By Foxy Grandpa

"DO you think there are any tigers around here, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby while we were walking out in the country in India.

"Not in this part of the country, Bobby," I answered.

"Or any elephants?" asked the boy.

"Not wild ones," said I.

"Or lions?"

"Why do you ask, Bobby," I queried.

"I was thinking it might be nice to lie down and take a rest. But I wouldn't want to if there were any wild animals stalking around and I didn't know it," replied the boy.

"I'm sure it's quite safe to lie down, Bobby," said I, reassuringly. "I think that is a very good idea."

So down we flopped and in a few minutes I was dreaming that I was playing mah jong with an elephant, a lion and a tiger and that I was the east wind.

Then I woke up. I guess it was the east wind blowing in my face.

There was Bobby stretched out beside me. His eyes were half open. But they did not look sleepy; they were fixed straight ahead of him.

"Am I asleep or am I not?" exclaimed Bobby, rubbing his eyes.

"You look awake to me," I chuckled.

"Am I dreaming, Foxy Grandpa?" the boy asked seriously, looking intently into my face.

"How can I tell?" I laughed. "Why, Bobby?"

Then Bobby looked down toward the ground, and I soon saw he was studying the beautiful purple blossoms on a plant at his feet.

"Pretty, aren't they?" I asked. "Very pretty plant."

"Pretty spooky plant," said Bobby, shaking his curly head.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Foxy Grandpa, do you see anything strange about that plant? I wonder if you see what I see," said Bobby.

"I don't see anything peculiar about that plant," I replied.

"Then I must be dreaming," insisted Bobby. "Look at those leaves there near the earth."

I leaned down and then I wondered if I was still in that mah jong game I thought I had been playing a short while before. For will you believe me when I tell you that as I looked at that plant one of the leaves lifted and wagged itself at me—exactly like a railroad signal? And while I was recovering from that shock what do you think I saw? There were the two lower leaves twisting and revolving like a merry go round!

"Are we both crazy?" I laughed.

"Perhaps I am, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby seriously. "Surely we both aren't."

Just then Bunny came hopping up and saw the amazement on our faces.

"What is it?" he asked.

"Look at those leaves there—that's a regular jazz plant. They are doing a regular shimmy—or wig wagging or something," explained Bobby.

"Oh," said Bunny, carelessly crossing one leg over the other, "that is the famous telegraph plant—so called on account of its appearance of giving signals—as they did with the semaphore apparatus before the discovery of electricity."

"Where does that Rabbit learn all he knows?" said Bobby under his breath to me.

"Just naturally smart," I whispered back.

TELL THIS AT DINNER

A high building was being erected in Dublin, when a workman lost his footing and fell from the roof. In his fall he managed to grasp a telegraph wire, which still left him at a perilous height from the ground.

"Hang on for your life!" shouted his fellow-workmen, and some of them ran to procure a mattress on which he could drop.

He held on for a few seconds only, and then shouted: "Stand from under!" and dropped.

He was picked up senseless and taken to a hospital. On his recovery he was asked why he did not hang on longer.

"Sure," he said, "I was afraid the wire would break."

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

What was written here some days ago about snow-shovellers in New York has brought gratifying results. I have from numbers of workmen readers who either ask me whether I "took down upon" common toil or plainly blame me and scold me for doing so. I would be a fine specimen to put on high-hat airs towards those who do the rough work of the world. I earned my first real money shining shoes for a rich family, and in my early years served behind the counter of a country grocery store, herded cattle and rounded cattle-pulled turnips, spread manure, milked cows, and did other work to be done on a farm.

Then, when I aspired to become a newspaper man, I began by sweeping floors, separating the dirt from the type, running errands, feeding satables for the journeymen, feeding old-fashioned printing presses, delivering newspapers, etc. My earnings were so meagre that I had to board in the most common kind of lodging-house, where some of those with whom I rubbed shoulders were peddlers, longshoremen, firemen, etc.

The thought behind what I wrote about the snow-shovellers was that most of those I watched acted as if their main concern was to do as little as possible.

And for such individuals, no matter what their station in life, I have no admiration. Whenever a rich doctor figures in the newspapers and is described as a "workman," I feel nothing but contempt for him. Fancy, never having done anything except pounce around rich!

To get back to our main subject. Do you not constantly hear such expressions as "you can't get Americans to do that kind of work"? And it would appear to be becoming more true every year, now that a larger and larger number of American born children are receiving a good education, that fewer and fewer of them choose lines of work commonly regarded as "menial."

Let us consider instances of present-day business leaders who were not afraid to get dirt and grime and grease on their hands and clothes in order to fit themselves for advancement.

The head of the largest army of employes in America today is Harry P. Thayer, chairman of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. Collegebred, he started as a clerk with an electric company, but quickly found his way into the factory and diligently applied himself to master the different jobs there.

Charles E. Mitchell, now president of the largest financial institution in America, did exactly the same thing with the same money.

Gerard Swope, president of the mammoth General Electric Company, although a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, began doing the dirtiest kind of work imaginable, later, when he was first making good as a salesman, he induced his boss to transfer him back to the shops to do practical work which didn't leave him immaculate at the end of the day.

James A. Farrell, president of the largest industrial enterprise in the world, the United States Steel Corporation, began as a common laborer, and even now he is just as much at home down in the grime of a mine as he is at his desk in his spacious office at the corporation's headquarters in New York.

A. H. Smith, who made such a mark as president of the New York Central Railway system, was first a railway clerk but concluded that the way to learn railroads was to get out and do the dirty work. So he joined a construction gang as a common laborer.

Frank A. Vanderlip early worked in a machine shop, Andrew Carnegie began as a bobbin-boy and Charles R. Seger, president of the United States Rubber Company and formerly head of the Union Pacific, did the very same thing as Smith did.

Thomas E. Wilson, when a clerk with Morris & Company, used to get out in the mud and dirt of the stockyards to learn the business from the ground up. Charles M. Schwab had a college education, but he did not disdain to start in as an ordinary workman in a steel plant. Walter C. Teagle, on leaving college, started as a stationary fireman and did other rough-and-ready work on his way up to the presidency of the principal Rockefeller company, Standard Oil of New Jersey.

BOSTON IMPORT RECEIPTS ARE LARGER

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

There has been a noteworthy increase in Boston imports.

Imports valued at $41,373,140 were received here in January, compared with $32,091,092 in November, and $24,357,195 in January, 1924.

Duties levied on imports amounted to $5,456,782.

Heavy receipts of wool, raw cotton and rubber helped swell month's total.

Use of rumors to delude investors is being discouraged by prominent industrial leaders, and this is it should be.

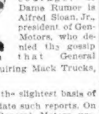
The latest discourager of Dame Rumor is Alfred Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, who denied the gossip that General Motors was acquiring Mack Trucks, saying:

"There is not the slightest basis of fact to substantiate such reports. On the contrary, General Motors program is built around our existing properties. Ever since the present management took hold its sole concern has been to correlate and strengthen what we already have, making them stronger and better in every way."

Including finally, this statement appears to show that General Motors proposes to stand on its own feet. There is hardly a motor stock of prominence but what has at some time or other been reported due for a merger with the great company.



J. S. Cosden

Is "Josh" Cosden, recent host of the Prince of Wales, "coming back" after relinquishing control of the company that made his name known in all localities where the historic shot fired by the Boston Minute Men was echoed?

Reports said to issue from those sections of the country where straw hats and Palm Beach suits are being worn by J. S. Cosden, former head of Cosden & Co., now the Mid-Continent Oil Co., is about to re-enter the oil business through organization of a new company.

It is said he will consolidate five mid-continent companies: Barry Petroleum Corp., Hope Petroleum Corp., Moore Refining Co., Burk-Gelo Oil Co. and the Burk-Hoffet Oil Co. Name of new organization will be the J. S. Cosden Co.

Boston Better Business Commission, Inc., hopes to say: "A case was called to our attention on Thursday by an elderly lady well informed on financial matters, but less informed as to the tricks of the unscrupulous stock salesmen. This party was induced to sign a paper under the belief that she was to receive a financial chart that would assist her in computing her tax return.

"Very few words were printed on the paper she signed but she did not read them. Upon signing the paper, she had lost control of valuable bonds involving the sum of several thousand dollars. The matter has been referred to local authorities."

JANUARY SALES OF CHAIN STORES GAIN

January sales of chain stores are showing marked improvement over the same month last year. S. S. Kresge & Co. report sales of $2,030,444 against $5,456,794, a gain of nearly 20 per cent; McCrory Stores Corporation, $1,706,651, an increase of more than 27 per cent., and J. C. CAST IRON PIPE HITS NEW HIGH RECORD

Stocks were steady in afternoon trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The opening was strong, followed by profit-taking in most of the issues that showed special buoyancy Thursday.

Standard industrials and specialties resumed their leadership of the market in the forward sweep of prices during the morning, such recent favorites as the oils and rails being temporarily relegated to the background. High-priced specialties advanced in spectacular fashion.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe soared 10 points to a record top for all time at 189. Nash Motors jumped 8, La Clede Gas 5, and General Electric 4. Worthington Pump, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Allis Chalmers, American Can, Mack Trucks, Davison Chemical and American Car & Foundry sold 2 to 3 points above Thursday's final quotations.

Fleischmann, which was weak at the opening, recovered its loss. Call money renewed at 3 per cent.

The first sale of stock of Fleischmann Company whose president, Julius Fleischmann, died suddenly yesterday, was a block of 4,800 shares at 78½, off 2¾. Later the issue recovered.

Arizona Commercial became suddenly very active on the Boston Stock Exchange and lifted better than a point in the initial hour. Bingham Mines was steady. Coppers generally displayed an improved tone, reflecting the better tone of the rest of the market.

GAS LIGHT IS WELL BOUGHT

Cambridge Gas Light Co., the pioneer Massachusetts gas light company to undertake sale of stock to employes and customers under Act 172 of 1924, has, since offering was made on January 3, sold a total of 2,200 shares to customers and employes.

The stock was purchased by 134 employes who took 462 shares and 300 customers who took the remaining 1738 shares. The purchase price was $55 for the $25 par shares, comparing with a current market price of about $65. The current dividend rate is $3 a year,—apart from any possibility of occasional extra dividends,—which nets the purchasers about 5.46 per cent. income return.

The employe-customer purchasers agree to hold the stock at least three years, and the company in turn agrees at any time eto take back the stock at the price paid.

This introduces in Massachusetts among gas light companies the "customer-ownership" feature so extensively developed by western public utility companies. The sale was effected without any "drive," the purchases being mainly in response to newspaper advertisements.

BOSTON TRADE IS DISPLAYING BETTERMENT

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston:

There are a few reports of reduced operations in the textile industry, but practically all other lines continue to make moderate gains, and distribution of commodities in New England is exceeding previous records.

The small increase in the new woolen prices, about 3 per cent. in serges, and 5.6 per cent. in fancy goods, is considered favorable.

WOOL PRICES FIRM.

The wool market has been quiet, with prices firmer. Worsted and knitting yarns are moving in small lots. Prices are steady.

The cotton market is irregular, buyers as a rule not placing orders ahead to any great extent. Wholesalers and retailers are reducing their stocks, but are looking to an early resumption of buying.

Fine yarns for electrical purposes are the most active, but spinners, as a rule, are not getting many forward orders. Hides and skins are somewhat easier. Tanners are quite busy, but are unable to obtain replacements for the kind of their leather. Boston wholesale shoe concerns reported a gain in December of over 37 per cent., as compared with February, 1923. Current sales of rubber footwear are improving.

DEPARTMENT STORES GAIN.

Boston department stores made a gain in sales in December of 13 per cent., as compared with the totals for the same month of 1923, while apparel shops made a gain of 7.1 per cent. during the same period. The largest gains were made in millinery, knit underwear and furs. Total sales of wholesale groceries in December were 13 per cent. ahead of those for December, 1923.

Chemicals are slow just now, but tanning materials are more active. Dyestuffs are moving in small quantities as needed. Weather conditions have interfered with demand and movement of lumber, and quotations on spruce and hemlock are lower, but hardwoods have not changed to any great extent.

Heavy building materials are moving well for this season of the year, and prices are steady. Current demand for paint is small, but orders for future delivery are coming in satisfactorily. Collections have improved somewhat.

COPPER PRICES TURN UPWARD

There has been a fresh outburst of activity and buoyancy in the copper market, with sales of 16 cents delivered Connecticut. Large buyers of copper have again come into the market. Manufacturers are making new contracts for Spring requirements.

The sudden rally in both the domestic and foreign market has apparently inspired new confidence throughout the entire trade. The selling pressure of the last few days which caused quotations to react to around 14½ to 14.20 cents for near delivery aside ship and to 14½ cents delivered Connecticut Valley has disappeared.

What Are Sleds For?

And Why Are Some Editors So Grouchy?

We still are listening for the first voice to be raised on behalf of the little boys and the little girls of Boston and other large cities of New England and in defence of their inalienable right to own sleds and use them.

Has anyone, anywhere, said one word for the children?

We have not heard it.

On the contrary, an editor 110 years old, up in Springfield, is out with a peremptory demand to "Stop Coasting in the Streets." This gentleman, who never was a little boy, who has no little boys, and who is not sympathetic with little boys, judging from the record, finds that:

"The proper place for coasting now is in the public parks and playgrounds, and it is right and proper that the city should make suitable and safe provisions for this wholesome recreation IN THOSE PLACES."

It is our guess that this crusty old editor lives at least five miles from the nearest park or playground. "Let them laugh and shout and cheer there, if they want to," their voices will not disturb HIM.

But what do the mothers of LITTLE children think? Do not five-year-old boys and six-year-old girls own sleds? What shall they do with them? Place them on the mantel? Who wants to send a child of five or six, three, four or ten blocks away to a playground, in the dark of a February afternoon? Does EVERY family in Springfield employ a nurse-maid?

It may be that as times have changed the children of New England have changed, but we doubt it. One hundred and fifty years ago, you remember, there was quite a fuss in this town of Boston over the question of sliding in the street. There are one hundred and fifty versions of the incident; ours is from Ellen Chase's "The Beginnings of the American Revolution":

"The old name for the portion of Beacon Hill sloping to School Street from Somerset Street was Sherburn's Hill. This Winter (1775), as previously, the boys had their coast here and, crossing Tremont street, continued on down past the Latin School, on School Street.

"Much of their fun was spoilt, however, since General Haldiman occupied the Elliot house, about where the present City Hall stands, and his colored servant had practically split their coast in two by scattering ashes before the door.

"This annoyance continuing, the Latin School nominated the first class as a committee, Jonathan Darby Robbins being one, to wait on the General, who, as Andrews tells it, admitted them, and heard their complaint, which was couch'd in very genteel terms, complaining that their fathers before 'em had improv'd it as a coast from time immemorial, etc. He order'd his servant to repair the damage, and acquainted the Governor with the affair, who observ'd that it was impossible to beat the notion of Liberty out of the people, as it was rooted in 'em from their childhood."

In OUR history-book, the lads went straight to General Gage, whose admiration of their pluck was enthusiastic. "You are brave boys," he said, "I see plainly you are English boys." Whereupon, "No, sir, Yankees! Yankees!" was the answer. But that isn't important. The important thing is that their slide was RETURNED TO THEM.

So ought the slides in this bigger and busier Boston, and in Springfield, and in all other communities where politicians have no time for persons under twenty-one, be returned to THEM.

If New York can close an occasional street to traffic, and give it to the children, why not Boston?

Have you forgotten, you grown-ups in high places? Have a heart!

Gertrude Loves Albert

Albert Loves Gertrude. And So, Although She Is Only 15, They Will Marry Before February Goes

How old should the bride be?

How YOUNG may she be?

At what age SHOULD young people marry?

In the United States, the tendency has been for the young man to postpone matrimony until he is on his feet, as the saying is, until at least it becomes more probable than otherwise that he will be able to give his wife a home as good as the one she is leaving.

The question is discussed occasionally in the women's magazines and once in a while is the subject of a good old-fashioned sermon. Distinguished educators favor early marriages. It is held by some that the man who marries before his twenty-fifth birthday has the better chance for success. He has something to work for. Love and responsibility give him courage.

According to little Gertrude Tetreault of Webster, in Worcester County, who became 15 years of age recently and who on Thursday, the 19th instant, will become Mrs. Albert Gendron, of Southbridge, the time to marry is "when the right man comes along."

Albert is 21. He has a "good job," in the industry which has made Southbridge famous and happy.

"If I waited years and years and years," Gertrude says, "I should never find anyone as dear to me as Albert. Too young? I am almost as old as Juliet! And besides, whose business is it?"

If any busybody suggests that it might be the business of the young lady's father and mother, the answer is that Mr. and Mrs. Philibert Tetreault are delighted with the match and have given it their blessing.

"I was married at 17," Madame Tetreault says, "and I have never found reason to regret it."

"You see," says M. Tetreault.

"And Gertrude's grandmother," Madame Tetreault continues, chuckling, "SHE was only 14, and SHE never regretted it.

"The fact of the matter is, a girl should marry at 15, PROVIDING SHE IS REALLY IN LOVE."

And that, perhaps, is the best answer available at the moment, that is it is time to marry when you are really and truly in love. IS there a better answer? We shall be glad to print it, whether it come from father, mother, or young lover.

The Tetreault-Gendron ceremony will be performed in the Church of the Sacred Heart at Webster. The reception will take place in Eagle Hall, Southbridge. We know it will be a merry occasion and thus early we extend to our young friends the sincere hope that their union may be as happy and as blest as those of Gertrude's parents and her grandparents.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

MY Daughter, which one of us hath not a little "Visitation" in the home?

For verily, verily, a Sinner may be cured or divorced; but from a Saint with the Seven Deadly Domestic Vices, there is no escape.

Go to. As a radio in the next room, as an alarm clock at daybreak, as an electric bell that will not stop ringing, so is a woman with "sensitive nerves." But a temperamental man is as a menagerie around the house and dynamite in the cellar.

Helen Rowland

A prying wife that investigateth her husband's pockets, and putteth him through a daily questionnaire, is as soap in the eyes and a new table napkin to the lips.

But an inquisitive husband that examineth the bottles on his wife's dressing table, and readeth her letters over her shoulder is as a pin in the collar and a corset-steel in the flesh.

As a steam pipe that bubbleth, as a rivveting machine across the street, as a vacuum cleaner in the hall, so is a woman with a chattering tongue.

But a man that delighteth in the sound of his own voice and overfloweth with his own opinions is as target practice in the front yards and blasting under the window.

As a collar with a raw edge, as a tack in the slipper, as water on a marcel wave, so is a critical husband that seeketh to "reform" a woman; but a carping wife that electeth herself a man's overseer is as a fish-bone in the throat.

As a wasp down the neck, as a thunder-storm at a picnic, so is a man with a chronic grouch; and a woman with a martyr-complex is as a blister on the heel.

As a telephone bell at midnight, as a fire-house next door, so is a woman that getteth easily "fussed"; and a fidgety and impatient man is as a jangling mudguard on a long tour.

As a chaperone at a petting party, as a New England Conscience in Paris, so is an husband that snoopeth in the ice-box and keepeth tabs on his wife's millinery bills.

And a wife that droppeth in unannounced at her husband's office is as rain on the Fourth of July. She taketh all the joy out of life!

Yea, alas, a Sinner may be punished or cast-off; but from THESE there is no deliverance!

SELAH!

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

The smallest act of charity shall stand us in great stead.

To manage men one ought to have a sharp mind in a velvet sheath.

Every man is valued in this world, as he shows by his conduct that he wishes to be valued.

It is more disgraceful to distrust than to be deceived by our friends.

Adversity tries men, and virtue strives for glory through adverse circumstances, undeterred by hard obstacles.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Clean the Sidewalks

Editor Boston Evening American:

Is it not about time for the snow and ice of the last storm to have disappeared from our sidewalks? I believe there is a city ordinance compelling its quick removal. While ashes and sand have in many cases made the walks usable in the South End, yet they are still in a deplorable condition.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THERE'S a medal for the swimmer who has braved an angry tide, struggling through the swirling waters where Death's awful legions ride; toiling on when strength is ended, toiling on when hope is gone, seeking still to save a brother, blinded, gasping, toiling on. There's a medal for the soldier, giving all a man can give, laying down his youth and gladness, dying that his land may live. There's a medal for the scholar delving deep in hidden lore, ever making earth the richer for the gems from learning's store. But the world, it seems, is careless of another, humbler man, and it gives no shining emblem though he does the best he can. Oh, we see them all around us, needed cogs within earth's plan, heroes passing by unheeded, men who do the best they can.

AIRSHIP TRAVEL IN NEAR FUTURE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE flight of the huge gas bag from Germany to the United States recently was significant in the era of transportation.

Dr. Eckener, who piloted the dirigible, says that trans-oceanic travel from Europe to the United States by air is a thing of the near future. He says that this kind of travel at first will be commercial, devoted to transporting fast mail and freight and, later on, passengers.

Trans-oceanic travel will develop faster than trans-continental because of the superior speed of the dirigible as opposed to the railway transportation and the surface ship. Besides this, bumpy air, caused by heat rising from the earth, is not present over the water.

Non-explosive helium is better than explosive hydrogen, such as was used in the Zeppelin. The only trouble is that helium costs much more than hydrogen.

The airship will be more popular with passenger traffic because its gentle, rolling motion does not cause seasickness or airsickness.

It is always possible to avoid storm centres, according to Dr. Eckener. Crossing the Atlantic, the dirigible was confronted by two storm centres, one off Cape Finisterre, in Spain and one in the Azores. The ship changed its course northward and went toward Newfoundland.

The greatest necessity is to replace hydrogen with helium, and gasoline with some other fuel which is not so dangerous.

The transfer of this dirigible from Germany to the United States ought to increase the good feeling toward Germany. It is not so easy to work up good feeling as it is to work up hate, but, in time, all hate must die and such exploits as communication between Germany and the United States by airship will be influential.

It is interesting to note in this connection that an aircraft corporation has been formed to use ships of the ZR-3 type for regular passenger service throughout this country, Europe and South America. This was indicated in a speech by Major-General C. R. Edwards, U. S. A., former Commander of the American Legion of Massachusetts.

During and since the War, the United States Navy has operated 1,515 blimps and made 8,847 flights without injury to any one, and General Edwards predicted that soon air travel will be safer than travel by railroad or steamship.

In this way the flight of the ZR-3 across the Atlantic was as significant as the passage of Columbus from Spain to this country, years ago.

UP AND DOWN AND EAST AND WEST

By Garrett P. Serviss

"'A' says 'down terminates at the center of the earth; 'B' says it extends to an infinite distance. Which is right?"

UP and down, like east and west, have no meaning except with reference to the earth. You begin to get a taste of relativity when you try to extend such notions to surrounding space.

If you could carry a straight line from the center of the earth through the top of your head, and on to an infinite distance, no doubt it would continue to be "up" all the way, no matter how far it went, because it would always recede from the center.

But when you traced the same line downward, it would stop going "down" on reaching the centre, and beyond that point its extension would become "up."

But the Einsteinians assert that it would be impossible for you to carry a straight line to an infinite distance, because, according to the general theory of relativity such a line is really curved, and if extended far enough will come back to its starting point, but from the opposite direction to that in which it started.

Still, you may properly insist that you can at least imagine a straight line of indefinite length, and you might say to the Einsteinians that when they affirm that there can be no straight line, because, according to their postulates, space is essentially curved, they are not proving that a straight line is impossible, but only that its existence is inconsistent with the kind of universe that they have imagined.

Well, thought is free, and everybody is at liberty to make such "postulates" as may suit the kind of mathematics that he prefers. Nevertheless, the only really useful postulates here below are those that accord with human experience.

If you were out in space far enough to be beyond the gravitational control of the earth, what direction do you think would be "down" for you then? Undoubtedly it would be the direction in which you would fall if* that is the source of our notions of down and up, and that direction would be toward the center of the sun. "Up" would be away from the center of the sun.

But if you went farther still, say to a point half way between the sun and the star Sirius, then "down" would be toward the center of Sirius, for Sirius has many times more gravitational power than the sun. And "up" would be away from Sirius.

In short, "up" and "down" would, anywhere in the universe, mean, respectively, toward and away from the center of the world or sun under whose immediate gravitational control you happened to be. So, gravitation is the father of down and up.

East and west are still more curious in their relativity. These directions exist only with reference to the rotation of the earth on its axis. The direction toward which the surface of the earth turns as the globe rotates on its axis is, by common consent, called east, and the direction from which it turns is west.

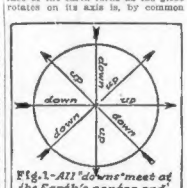

Fig. 1—All "downs" meet at the Earth's center and become "ups"

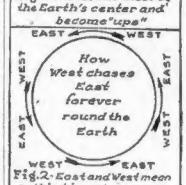

Fig. 2—East and West mean nothing in outer space

North and south, too, are notions originating from the fact of the earth's rotation, since they denote the directions of the two opposite ends, or poles, of the earth's axis.

But because they are fixed in direction with reference to the central plane of the equator, they are also applied to the heavens, which are conceived as surrounding the earth like a hollow sphere, and the northern half of the earth being overreached by the northern half of the heavens, and so with the southern hemisphere.

The peculiarities of which we have been talking are illustrated in the cuts. Fig. 1 shows how down changes to up at the center of the earth, and Fig. 2 how east and west are forever flitting around the globe, and, like the end of the rainbow, are never to be caught.

ONCE-OVERS

TODAY'S SACRIFICES MEAN INDEPENDENCE IN OLD AGE

Before you ridicule or seek to embarrass that so-called "tight-wad" in your department it might be well for you to learn more of his affairs.

You may find that he has expenses of which you know little and ill-luck may have brought to him old debts which he is having a hard time to pay off.

Perhaps he has the good sense to be following a savings plan which in later years will relieve him of much worry—enough to help him to live on something beside "the day's work" or his salary.

The close-fisted fellow of your force may be your boss in a few years, who knows?

There must be self-denial to reach the worth-while goal of being able to clip the coupons when you are no longer able to work steadily.

But let the coupons be from gilt-edge bonds and be sure you know enough about finance to be able to tell risky from safe investments.
